The Advance Threshing Machinery.

The best and fastest thresher in America, and a machine that stands without a rival. The ADVANCE Thresher has NEVER been REPLACED by any other machine on the Coast, but has replaced several others that HAVE FAILED to fill WARRANTEE. Why get some OLD STYLE machine because it is cheap when you can get an ADVANCE on the start and do good work in any kind of grain. You do not have to cut and try with the ADVANCE, but start your power, then commence threshing at once. I take the liberty of referring you to the following parties owning ADVANCE Threshers (without their knowledge): Dr. H. A. Davis Harrisburg, after wasting most of the season trying to run a cheap machine, bought an ADVANCE and averaged 2206 bushels per day. M. F. White & Co., Dixie, same experience, but after getting an ADVANCE averaged 2046 bushels per day. Knox Bros., Albany, with a little 28-inch machine averaged 1650½ bushels per day. Henry T. Bold, Spangle, writes, after trying a ——— machine the best part of the season bought an ADVANCE. Was then able to run without a blacksmith and carpenter shop. The ENGINE is guaranteed to pull more than any other, and will outtravel all others on the road. If you hear any loud boasts, please tell the parties the ADVANCE THRESHER and ENGINE are sold on their merits entirely. And I am willing to prove all I claim in any field at any time. Do not be humbugged by buying any machine until you see the ADVANCE. I also handle steam fitting goods, iron pipe, laundry machinery and many other specialties. Send for catalogue of what you want.

THEIR WORST DEFEAT.

Prohibition Finds Its Last Ditch in Pennsylvania.

LOST BY TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND

The Contest Was Rich in Amusing Features, and Was Free From Rowdyism and Drunkenness—The County Majorities.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—The voting on the prohibition amendment proceeded quietly. The day was clear, and there was a light vote. There was a notable absence of women from the polls, and the distribution of ice water and sandwiches was not so profuse as was anticipated. In some parts of the city the prohibition folks enlisted Sunday school children to distribute cold water tickets.

Returns are just beginning to come in.

Bradford county gives 120 majority for the prohibition amendment and, about 500 against the poll tax amendment.

Juniata county gives 150 majority against the prohibition amendment and 200 majority against the poll tax amendment.

The following majorities for and against the prohibitory amendment have been received:

Philadelphia city (complete), against, 93,000.
Cameron county, 150 for.
Lehigh county, 5000 against.
Potter county, 500 for.
Berks county, 20,000 against.
Chester county, 2820 for.
Clearfield county, 1500 for.
Northampton county, 1000 against.
Reading county, 6700 against.
Wayne county, 400 against.
Warren county, 400 for.
Bedford county, 600 against.
Fulton county, 400 against.

Mifflin county, 850 for.
Monroe county, 1500 against.
Luzerne county, 2200 against.
Centre county, 1750 for.
Chester county, 800 against.

NEARLY BY 200,000.

Returns from forty-four out of sixty-seven counties show a majority against the prohibition amendment of 169,464. Full returns from the whole state will probably raise the figures to nearly 200,000.

AT PITTSBURG.

The Strangest Election in the History of the City.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—To-day's election on the prohibitory amendment was never equaled for strange sights and sounds.

The streets were filled all day with amused crowds, watching the brass bands and the antics of the infantile glee clubs of the prohibitionists. Everyone seemed in good humor, and the election was more free from fights than any election before known.

The vote in Allegheny county is without precedent for a special election, and rivals the vote at any general election.

Conservative politicians say that the majority against the amendment will reach 25,000.

Returns received from the surrounding counties are estimated as follows:

Fayette county, 3200 majority for.
Forest county, 350 majority for.
Beaver county, 1500 for.
Huntington county, 1000 for.
Westmoreland county, 600 for.
Butler county, 2500 for.
McKean county, 500 for.
Washington county, 2000 against.
Crawford county, 1500 for.
Blair county, 3500 for.
Venango county, 1800 for.
Green county, 400 for.

LANCASTER COUNTY.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 18.—This county gives 6349 majority against the prohibitory amendment.

NAVAL CADETS IN PERIL.

A Training Ship Aground Off Cape Henry and a Storm Prevailing.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—A dispatch from Norfolk says: The United States training ship Constellation is aground a mile inside of Cape Henry with naval cadets from Annapolis aboard. A northeast storm prevails, and the atmosphere is thick. Assistance has gone to her relief.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

NORFOLK, June 18.—The training ship Constellation, with Annapolis cadets aboard and which went aground to-night a mile northwest of Cape Henry, is in charge of Commander Harrington and Navigating Officer Towe. Three hundred people were on board. The Baker Salvage Company have sent a vessel to her assistance.

THE CONSTELLATION DRIFTING ASHORE.

LATER—Intelligence from the Constellation at 11:30 o'clock to-night is to the effect that she is 300 yards from shore, and drifting in.

The captain of the life saving station at Cape Henry with his crew has gotten a line to the ship and has hauled out the breeches buoy, although no one has been gotten ashore as yet.

The wind, which was heavy at the time the ship went ashore, has since quieted down some, and it may be that the Constellation may not go to pieces, although there is not much chance that she will be saved.

Besides the Salvage company's steamer, two tugs of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk line are on their way to the scene.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Six Cars Hurled Down an Embankment, Two Men Being Killed and 100 Injured.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 18.—A railroad wreck, causing the death of two men and injuring about one hundred others, occurred at the Pratt mines this morning on the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company's line that leads from town out to slope No. 7.

Every morning a train is run from the company's offices in town to the mines to accommodate the miners and others who work at the mines. The train lines out men along the line at nearly every house and crossing. Before it reaches the mines it usually has between 200 and 300 on board.

This morning the train consisted of three passenger cars, several ore cars and one or two caboose. The engine was attached to the end of the train and was pushing the cars forward. While running at the rate of ten miles an hour, the train struck a cow lying on the track and six cars were hurled down an embankment. Walter Hearty and Henry McCauley, two carpenters, were killed and nearly a hundred men were injured, some of them having their limbs broken. None of the injured will die.

SEVERE STORMS IN INDIANA.

Much Damage Done to Property and Growing Crops.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 18.—A destructive wind storm swept over Peru, Ind., this afternoon, doing great damage. Trees, fences and telegraph and telephone poles were leveled, and many dwellings injured.

Several freight cars standing on the Lake Erie & Western tracks were turned by the wind and pushed with great velocity through the walls of store buildings. The total loss will be many thousands of dollars.

Much damage was also done to the growing crops throughout Miami county.

THE SIOUX COMMISSION.

Red Cloud Very Bitter in His Remarks Before the Council.

PINE RIDGE AGENCY, June 18.—Late this afternoon the Indians assembled in council with the commissioners.

Old-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horse, Red Cloud, Little Wound, Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horse and Blue Horse, spoke against the bill, and some of the half-breeds in favor of it.

Red Cloud was very vicious in his speech, referring constantly to the provisions of the treaty of 1868, which, he said, had not been at all fulfilled, and saying that they wanted to be paid what was now due them before giving up more land. The speeches of the other chiefs were in a similar strain, although not so radical.

Major Warner, General Crook and Governor Forster spoke at length in reply, explaining again the provisions of the bill, and why they should sign.

General Crook told them that if they are to live at all they must become self-supporting. In a pond, he said, the big fish always swallow the little ones, and when white men come among Indians, as they would do in a few years, in spite of all the government could do to prevent them, the Indians would be the little fish, unless they agreed to the provisions of this bill and protected their land by getting patents on it. He told the Indians that the trouble with them was that they always get advice from men who wanted to live on them.

After the talk, Red Cloud decided not to sign, and added that he wanted all the Indians that signed put off the reservation. He was impertinent, and said he wanted the commissioners to pack up and leave to-morrow.

General Crook opposed him and recited to the Indians some of the instances of Red Cloud's duplicity.

After the council broke up the Indians began signing, and up to 10 o'clock to-night about 350 had signed. A large number still declare opposition to the measure.

THE CRONIN MURDER.

The Police Believe That They Have Found the Principal at Winnipeg.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Chief of Police Hubbard, in speaking of the arrest of Martin Burke in Winnipeg for complicity in the Cronin murder, said this morning that he had a good deal more evidence against Burke than had been published. He said there was not a shadow of doubt in his mind that Burke aided kill Cronin. The police do not say where this information came from, but it is said that a friend of Burke has "squealed," and will accompany an officer with a requisition to Winnipeg.

THE GRAND JURY.

The Western Union Required to Produce Certain Dispatches.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Cronin grand jury came into court to-day and reported that W. E. Bell, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, refused to disclose the contents of certain dispatches which are deemed necessary for investigation. The attorney for the Western Union explained that this refusal is merely formal, in order to fulfill the requirements of law. An order was then spread upon the record of the court, directing the witness, under pain of contempt of court and commitment to jail, to produce any and all messages, cables or copies thereof, in the Chicago office passing between Alexander Sullivan, Dan Coughlin, John J. Mannex and Charles McDonald, whether under their true names or any alias, or between either of these men and any other person or persons, since the 1st of March last.

Fifteen or twenty witnesses were before the jury this afternoon, but not much information was obtained from them.

Rev. Father Dunney was called and asked to give the particulars of P. W. Dunne's charge of embezzlement against Alexander Sullivan and his (Dunney's) subsequent investigation of this charge, by agreement of the principals. Father Dunney related the circumstances of the charge, and stated that it was only after a full investigation of the affairs of Sullivan, and of the amount of his annual income, that he pronounced Dunne's charge groundless.

The reverend gentleman was also questioned closely regarding his knowledge of Clan-na-Gael affairs, but failed to disclose any particular knowledge of their workings.

REMANDED UNTIL SATURDAY.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 18.—Burke, the Cronin suspect arrested here, was arraigned in the police court this morning. The chief of police stated that he was holding the prisoner on the strength of a telegram from the Chicago authorities, charging him with being the principal in the Cronin murder. The magistrate accordingly remanded him until Saturday.

WOODRUFF'S BAD RECORD.

How His Testimony Came Near Hanging a Celimate in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—The Evening Post, in giving a criminal history of Frank Black, alias Woodruff, now under arrest in Chicago for connection with the Cronin murder, says that Woodruff was in prison at Oakland in 1885, on a charge of petty larceny, when George Jones was arrested for the murder of Lorenzo Dutel, a saloonkeeper, who was found dead with his head crushed. The evidence against Jones was purely circumstantial, and the most conclusive testimony was that of Woodruff, who testified that while a cellmate of Jones, in the city prison, the latter confessed to him that he had murdered Dutel. On Woodruff's testimony Jones was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. A new trial was granted on technical grounds, and owing to Jones' old age and ill health he was never brought to a second trial. It is claimed that Jones was railroaded to the gallows by detectives to secure a reward, and that Woodruff was a tool in the hands of the conspiracy.

THE DAY AT JOHNSTOWN.

A Majority of Three for the Prohibition Amendment.

JOHNSTOWN, June 18.—The first effort looking to the establishment of a civil government here was made this afternoon, when General Hastings met a few of the remaining council and reorganized that body. President Kennedy presided at the meeting, and after reorganizing it was decided to allow the business men to build temporary structures on the two public parks of the place.

After the meeting General Hastings offered to withdraw the troops at once, but the council asked that they be allowed to remain here for a week longer, when it is thought the citizens can again assume charge.

Occasionally a corpse is found buried in the debris and rubbish throughout the town, but the most prolific spot is the mass of wreckage above the railroad bridge. Eleven bodies were blown up there by blasting to-day.

The prohibition amendment was carried here to-day by a majority of 3 votes. The votes cast were 446 for and 443 against the amendment.

The guards at Camp Hastings near the Prospect Hill burying ground, report to-day that they are having trouble with dogs that are constantly disturbing the interred bodies. Over 100 dogs were driven from the place last night and several of them killed. The hastily-dug graves there are shallow and the dogs have been uncovering and devouring the bodies.

THE CONGO RAILROAD.

Its Advent Hailed With Delight by Missionaries.

BOSTON, June 18.—Huntington's Congo railway enterprise has excited great interest in missionary circles. Rev. N. G. Clark, secretary of the American board, expressed joy at the new avenue for spreading the Gospel which the road will provide.

"The great Congo valley," he said, "with its 50,000,000 of heathens, has hitherto been practically inaccessible, because of the great difficulties presented by the passage of Stanley Falls. This proposed railroad will open it up, and the result will be civilization and Christianity. If Leopold, the dispatches have been quite silent, and news upon this point will be anxiously looked for. Edmund Smith is likely to prove very acceptable as president of the Congo Railway & Navigation Company. With the great powers of Europe co-operating in behalf of order and good government in the Congo country, the triumph of the cross will be unimpeded by those obstacles which have in all other cases had to be overcome before Christian teaching could begin."

WOODRUFF'S BAD RECORD.

TRANSFERRED TO THE W. U.

A Deed Recorded That Conveys the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Lines.

BALTIMORE, June 18.—A deed was recorded yesterday between the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company and the Western Union Telegraph Company, whereby the former conveys to the latter all its right, title and interest in telegraph lines and property of every nature and description for the consideration of $1, and the entire discharge of the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company from the obligation to issue $6,000,000 in bonds, provided for in its contract with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company.

CONVENTION OF MINING ENGINEERS.

The Coming Annual Meeting of the American Institute To Be Held in Denver.

DENVER, Col., June 18.—The fifty-fourth annual convention of the American Institute mining engineers will commence here to-morrow. There are now nearly two hundred delegates in the city. The convention will be in session at Denver Wednesday and Thursday. An excursion will then be taken to various mining camps in the state, and the third meeting held in Aspen the last of the week.

Parnell's Libel Suit.

LONDON, June 18.—Parnell's appeal against the postponement of his libel suit against the Times was abandoned with costs. The court decided that the delay of the trial had not damaged Parnell's character, the Times having admitted the libel and paid the money into court.

THE VILLARD PARTY.

Its Members Decline to Talk With the Reporters.

A RECEPTION AT THE TACOMA.

Mr. Villard Speaks In a Flattering Manner of the Town, and Says Its Growth Has Even Rivaled That of Portland.

TACOMA, W. T., June 18.—Henry Villard, Thomas F. Oakes and other Northern Pacific officers, accompanied by Paul Schulze, arrived in Tacoma about 12 o'clock from Portland.

President Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific will meet them to-morrow, when some important arrangement relative to the line to the boundary will be made.

THEY HAVE NOTHING TO SAY.

TACOMA, June 18.—President Oakes, of the Northern Pacific, Henry Villard, and Second Vice-President Prescott, who returned to the city last evening from the Oregon & Transcontinental election in Portland yesterday, steadily refused to be interviewed to-day relative to the result. President Oakes was curt and brusque to several of the local newspaper men, and it was evident that neither Mr. Villard nor himself was in a pleasant frame of mind during the early part of the day.

G. W. Hunt, the builder of the Hunt system of railways in Eastern Washington and Oregon, had several interviews during the day with Messrs. Oakes and Villard.

In the afternoon President W. C. Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific came in on the Victoria boat. Mr. Van Horne, who is an American citizen, and who made his way up from brakeman on an American railroad, was gentlemanly and polite to the reporters. He said that the meeting with Villard and Oakes, with whom he had several chats, was purely accidental, as he had been showing a number of gentlemen over his road and came down with them as far as Tacoma to send them back over the Northern Pacific. Mr. Van Horne said that the Northern and Canadian were daily coming into closer business relations, though he would like to see the Northern bought up by Winnipeg and Manitoba. He thought the construction of the Canadian Pacific was a good thing for the Northern, for when the latter was first built people thought it ran through the frigid zone. There was talk of building another transcontinental line north of the Canadian, which would be a good thing for the Canadian, as it was entirely feasible. President Van Horne will leave to-morrow morning.

A RECEPTION AT THE TACOMA.

Arrangements were made for a brilliant reception to the railroad guests yesterday, to take place this evening in parlor A of the Tacoma. Four hundred invitations were issued, with a request to buy tickets at $5 each. About seventy-five gentlemen responded with their ladies. The parlor was handsomely decorated. Dancing was indulged in, a fine lunch was spread, and an orchestra discoursed sweet music.

Mayor Wheelwright, in an eloquent speech, introduced Henry Villard, who said he thanked the people for the kindly welcome extended, and referred to the first welcome he received six years ago, contrasting it with the brilliant gathering before him of beauty, wealth and intelligence. He was slightly disappointed, as he had been informed the affair was going to be an informal one, when he discovered it to be rather formal for him, as he had been called on to make a speech, which was embarrassing.

He had been visiting the three largest cities—Seattle, Portland and Tacoma—and of course, was expected to say something that would not offend either.

"I speak the truth, however," continued Mr. Villard, "When I say that what I saw here six years ago and what I have seen to-day utterly surprises me. From the news I had received from time to time, I was prepared to be surprised, but the sights I have enjoyed far surpass my expectations. I told the Portland people that their population had multiplied seven times in eight years. If I remember aright, your population eight years ago was 2000. Now, I am told it is 25,000. So you have multiplied more than twice as many times as Portland. I hope, for my reputation, however, that this fact will not reported in Portland by the newspaper reporters.

"I said last fall in St. Paul to the Chamber of Commerce that this Northwestern country would have 5,000,000 population in thirty years. I believe the rapid progress will continue, and if we live it will be seen that I am a true prophet. I hope you will multiply in the future as you have in the past, and that I may be permitted to contribute to your growth.

"Two years ago next September I returned to the Northern Pacific board in a manner gratifying to me, because it was at the earnest invitation of your great friend, C. B. Wright. [Applause.] He has done more for you than any one else could expect to do. I bear testimony to his constancy, foresight, liberality and the beneficence with which he has watched over the destinies of this city. He has been called the father of Tacoma, and deserves the name. I have co-operated with him in your growth, and at Mr. Wright's invitation last winter met him in Philadelphia, arranged certain plans for your terminal facilities here, and with my means for raising funds for the work. I am glad to say that the most liberal provisions have been made to carry on that enterprise. I owe an undischarged debt to Tacoma since 1883. On the occasion of the opening of the Northern Pacific road then, the good people of Tacoma prepared a hearty welcome for my American and foreign guests. Want of time simply compelled us to pass through the town, but I was always resolved, the first opportunity I got, to make good the omission. I say to you that I have not forgotten your kindness at that time, nor have my friends forgotten your magnificent mountain, and the rose-colored sunset so majestically pictured on its magnificent height."

President T. F. Oakes followed in a brief speech, correcting an erroneous impression that Mr. Villard had always been opposed to the building of the Cascade branch, saying that he was the builder of the first twenty-five miles of that branch and always recognized the fact that the road must cross the Cascades.

Brief speeches were made by Nelson Bennett and Vice-President Prescott, when dancing was resumed.

OPINION IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Railroad Men Would Like to Know If the U. P. Is to Run to Tacoma.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—The railroad column of the Chronicle will to-morrow say: "As was to be expected, the result of the Portland railroad election was a much discussed matter in railroad circles here to-day. The Northern Pacific and its friends say, 'I told you so, and the Union Pacific people claim that the honors are even. Although Villard is now president of the Oregon Transcontinental, the Union Pacific feels safer in its freedom from Northern Pacific influence, and so has nearly gained all that it wanted. One matter, however, is in doubt, and is exercising the Union Pacific men considerably. Prior to the election an agreement was said to have been made, by which the Union Pacific was to be allowed the use of the Northern Pacific's line from Portland to Tacoma. On this matter

Fatal Fight at a Horse Race in Montana.

THE SITUATION AT SEATTLE.

A Helena Banker's Son Drowned—The Death Sentence Pronounced—A Railroad Project From the Siuslaw to Eugene.

BUTTE, June 18.—Silver Lake is a small village four miles from Georgetown, in early Montana days. It was noted for its placer diggings. It is still a small mining camp fringed around by several logging camps, whose laborers are employed principally by the Montana Lumbering Company, of Anaconda. A year ago, two Swedes named Bjornstern, brothers, located a claim in the vicinity. More recently four loggers, comprising one of the camps above mentioned, attempted to jump the claim and were strenuously opposed by Tom McCoy, a saloon keeper of Georgetown, who espoused the cause of the Swedes. Bad blood between McCoy and the loggers ensued. A match horse race at Silver Lake, between local sturb celebrities, was run yesterday. It was a red letter day for the sports in that region. The programme attracted hundreds of miners from the neighboring towns of Georgetown, Pyramid and Southern Cross.

The races took place in the great edification of the assembled crowd. After the main race, a race for a small purse was arranged between horses owned by Rice, a logger, and another by Anderson, of Georgetown. The race resulted in a foul, and hard feelings crystallized into a free fight. During the fight William McCoy, of Georgetown, was encouraging Anderson, the logger named Bowley, Perry struck McCoy with a bludgeon used immediately after, whipping out a six-shooter, he fired three shots in quick succession, the first striking a man from Butte named Ed Baxter, inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound. The second struck McCoy in the head, penetrating the brain, death ensuing within a few minutes. The third struck the top of the head of Mr. Frodel, of Georgetown, inflicting a scalp wound and laying him senseless for a few minutes.

Perry jumped on a horse, and after running the gauntlet of a hot fusilade from the friends of McCoy made his escape into a dense wood near by. Sheriff Moore, of Deer Lodge county, and a posse left after Perry, but no capture has yet been made.

Perry is a young man, 23 years old. He is well armed, and probably will make a stubborn resistance if overtaken by the posse on the heels of the description of the murderer was issued, the sheriffs of adjoining counties, and it is not likely that he will long escape capture.

The murdered man was 30 years of age, unmarried, and had resided in Montana a number of years. He had always borne the reputation of a peaceable man.

Baxter reached Butte this morning.

THE SITUATION AT SEATTLE.

The Militia To Be Gradually Withdrawn To-day.

SEATTLE, June 18.—Mayor Moran and Colonel J. C. Haines, commanding the First regiment, held a consultation to-day, and it was determined that it would be safe to withdraw the militia to-morrow. The chief of police is making his preparations to take charge of the city, and counting regulars and specials, he will have under his control 100 policemen. It is not anticipated that there will be trouble whatever re-enactment as there has been, no trouble at all from the riotous element since the outbreak that shortly followed the fire. Company C will return to Tacoma, Company A to Vancouver, and Company G is Blakely, probably on Thursday.

His Father at First Thought He Was Held for Ransom.

HELENA, Mont., June 18.—Banker L. H. Hirshfield, who was a candidate for governor at the time a successor was appointed to fill the chair of Governor Leslie, is very anxious as to the whereabouts of Ezra Hirshfield, son of the banker, who has been missing in New York since last Wednesday. The entire police force and a number of detectives are on the search. The boy disappeared just as Hirshfield's family were starting for Montana. Traces of him have been found, and word was received yesterday that the police were on the right track. Hirshfield is almost hourly advised by telegraph of what is transpiring. The boy's father is still in New York and will not start until the boy is found. Hirshfield received a telegram Sunday asking him to start for the East. Just as he was preparing for the journey he was advised that the boy would be returned to his home within twenty-four hours, and decided to remain. Hirshfield believes his son is held for ransom.

A quarrel ensued, and Basler, who was larger than Kline, advanced toward him threateningly. Kline then pulled a revolver and shot him twice, and Basler was killed. Before the decision was rendered by the lower court Dunster moved for a continuance, on the ground of newly discovered evidence, being the affidavits of 16 voters of the Boston Ravine precinct who had voted for him, although on the recount he had but 109 votes to his credit. The lower court refused to continue the case, however, and Dunster appealed.

The supreme court holds that in view of the showing he made it was an error on the part of the lower court to refuse a reasonable continuance, and the case is remanded for a new trial.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY RACES.

The Great Suburban Handicap Won by August Belmont's Raceland.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The greatest American racing event of the year was determined this afternoon at the Sheepshead Bay track. A northeast wind blew a quarter gale over the course this afternoon, and the 80,000 people present found it especially comfortable.

The great suburban was the fourth event on the card, and through the preceding races the throng was scarcely held in check by the interest in the running they witnessed. The bell had been rung at 4:20 P. M. as soon as the preceding race was run, there was a rush to the betting shed to invest on it. Soon the crowd became so great that it was only by pushing and shoving that bets could be made, and the book-makers took them their money. Most of the betters acted like crazy men in their anxiety to back their favorites. The track by this time had dried out finely, and, although damp underneath and soggy on top it was a safe one, but it was in a far better condition than the average suburban track.

First race, 2-year-olds, five-eighths of a mile—St. Carlo won in 1:01, Civil Service second, Beautify third.

Second race, mile—Seadrift won in 1:44 3-5, Inspector B. second, Brown Charlie third.

Third race, tidal stakes, 3-year-olds, mile—Salvation won in 1:44 2-5, Erie second, Reporter third.

THE GREAT EVENT.

Fourth race, suburban handicap; sweepstakes $100 each, half forfeit; association to add the amount necessary to make the value of the stake $10,000; the second to receive $2000, and the third $1000 out of the money so added; winning penalties and handicap allowances, one and one-fou th miles—Starters: Terra Cotta, Eurus, Raceland, Badge, Elkwood, Bella Bella, Gorgo, Volunteer, Beacon and Bryan Boru. Raceland, owned by August Belmont, won; Terra Cotta, of the Chicago stables, second; Gorgo, owned by G. Hirst, third; time, by fractions, 24¾, :50, 1:15¾, 1:42¾, 2:09 3-4.

Raceland is a bay gelding, four years old, by Billet, dam Calumet. He was purchased by Joe Welman, a St. Louis bookmaker, as a yearling for $200. His career as a two-year-old was most brilliant. Starting twelve times, he was first in no less than seven, second once and unplaced twice. He first and defeated all of the best youngsters of his age in the country, and placed to the credit of his owner about $16,500. After taking in Washington, where Raceland defeated the Emperor of Norfolk in the Arlington Stakes in the best time ever made on the Ivy City track. August Belmont bought him for $17,500.

When the suburban was called, the horses pranced about the post in a restless way. Volunteer kicked Terra Cotta slightly, and then Gorgo gave Elkwood a slight kick. At the second attempt they got away, with Gorgo in the lead and Elkwood, Eurus and Badge next.

At the quarter post Volunteer led by a length, Gorgo was second by a length and a half before Bella Bella, with Badge, Eurus, Bryan Boru, Terra Cotta and Elkwood next, going in the back stretch. Gorgo went to the front and soon had the lead by two lengths from Eurus. Gorgo led until they were well into the home stretch, with Raceland next. On they came like a whirlwind.

As they entered the home stretch, Gorgo was still in the lead. But he was destined to be distanced, and amid the plaudits of 10,000 throats, Raceland dashed past the judge's stand an easy winner by a length and a half in 2:09 3-4. Terra Cotta, second, was half a length before Gorgo, third.

Mile and an eighth—Beats June won in 1:56 4-5, Teatray second, Bunboyne third.

ALL FOR REVENGE.

The Proprietor of a Low Variety Show Fatally Shot by an Ex-Policeman.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—Ex-Policeman Joseph W. Wallace shot and killed George H. Rice, proprietor of the Elite theater, on Grant avenue, this evening.

Wallace had been employed for the past few weeks as a special watchman about the theater, but last night was discharged. This morning he began drinking and, it is said, threatened to seek revenge on Rice for discharging him.

About 5 o'clock this evening he went into a saloon on Stockton street and called for a messenger boy, to whom he gave a note. The messenger took the note and soon returned with a revolver. Wallace replied that he wanted a knife, but said he thought he could "fix" him with the pistol. He then went to the Elite theater, which is in a cellar, and was standing on the steps when Rice entered. He tripped Rice as he came down the steps and then fired four shots, all of which took effect, two in the region of the heart.

Rice was carried to his room, where he died in a short time. Wallace was arrested, but refuses to make a statement.

THE CALIFORNIA RAISIN CROP.

It Is Reliably Estimated That It Will Not Much Exceed That of Last Year.

FRESNO, Cal., June 18.—The season is now far enough advanced to venture the statement that the output of raisins for the entire state this season will not be much in excess of last year's crop.

The Southern California vineyards will not, it is reliably estimated, produce more than one-third of the quantity of raisins marketed from that section last year. The Southern raisin district includes all of San Diego, San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties, and last season's crop amounted to about 450,000 boxes, numbers when they have failed to carry out their hellish plans, and there will not be in our country lamp posts and telegraph and telephone poles enough to hang the fiends represents. I ask you, is there room in this country for scoundrels like the Clan-na-Gael, that are not in harmony with, and are injurious to, American institutions, that are dangerous to American order, destructive to American principles, repugnant to American ideas and disgusting to all Americans who have any sense of justice, any regard for consistency, and any respect for the sanctity of human life? Or have we room for societies whose officers contract with men to commit wholesale murder, and then betray their tools, that they themselves may have more money to send for their own personal benefit? One-third of our entire population is of foreign birth or parentage. Alien flags and foreign emblems float from our public buildings, emblaze our streets, and head processions of the people. We are cursed with all kinds of foreign and non-American influences, vast un-American organizations are held together by the issues of foreign birth, for the purpose of perpetuating foreign sentiments and corrupting the ideals of our fathers. Anarchy and the destruction of all laws are openly advocated. The right to reform the discipline and principles of some of these orders is claimed by the secret conclaves, even to the extent of taking human lives."

ALONG THE NEHALEM.

Timber Speculators Gobbling Up All Available Land in Columbia County.

VERNONIA, June 14.

As predicted in a recent number of THE OREGONIAN, the boom has reached this place and business is showing an increased activity. The stage comes in twice a week with a full load, and quite a number of prospective settlers arrive with their own conveyances.

The Rock Creek Mining Company recently incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, held its first annual meeting and elected the following officers: Gus H. Byron, president; William H. Brown, secretary; R. U. McNutt, treasurer; board of directors—Gus H. Byron, chairman; Ludrick Lapten, J. C. Coulter, G. W. Dow and M. Simmons.

The work on the mines is progressing rapidly. Several prospecting parties have been out already this season, and half a dozen claims were located this week.

The contract has been let for the construction of three bridges, one across the Nehalem at Taylor's ferry, one at this place across Rock creek, and one down at Pittsburg. This will improve the road between Forest Grove and Vernonia far more than the same amount of money expended in any other direction.

Fires are raging in the mountains west of here, but have done no damage so far except to timber.

Speaking of timber calls to mind the fact that there is a great deal of excitement here over the number and character of the timber claims taken in this vicinity. The old settlers object strongly to having the land taken up by claims of men who have no means and never expect to improve it. In several instances the timber claimants have acknowledged that their intentions were to prove up and sell their claims at once to men who would hold the land for an indefinite length of time, thereby speculating. This would keep the settlement back and check its present prosperous growth.

For the past month a party of locators have been putting men on claims at $50 a head. There has been quite a number of charges of fraud made against the locators and among the rest might be cited that of a young man living in Forest Grove. He paid $50 for a claim and after he had spent two days on the claim found that the numbers given were six miles from the claim shown him. Another case is that of the timber man who filed on a claim embracing a portion of three ranches now occupied by actual resident settlers, one of whom has been on his place for nearly ten years. And there are scores of others of the same sort.

A protest was made against the method employed by the locators and the quality of land which was being taken. It came to the ears of one of the leaders of the timbermen, and he made a declaration to the effect that if the settlers in here did not mind their own business and let them do as they pleased, that the locators would take half the homestead and pre-emption claims already occupied and secure them as timber land. They have been a thorn in the side of the settlers, who have almost reached the end of their patience. Fresh cases of the timber men are becoming very frequent, and trouble is feared.

There will be plenty of grouse and pheasants this fall. The bear crop promises to be unusually large, no doubt owing to the immense yield of wild berries of all varieties. The stock all along the river is looking better than ever before at this time of year. NEHALEM.

MISS LUCIA R. GRIFFIN.

Miss Lucia R. Griffin, of the Boston school of oratory, is in the city, and will appear at the New Park during the latter part of the week. "Without doubt," says an exhange, "she is naturally qualified for such a place with rare abilities. Possessed with a voice of sweetness and power, and a fine, emotional nature, she throws both into her rendering with consummate skill. She will appear in character sketches, costume impersonations, life-like imitations and mimicry." Half the proceeds of the Saturday matinee will be given to the Orphans' Home of East Portland.

Eastern Farm Lands.

Boston Herald.

It is not in New England alone that farm lands are rapidly depreciating in value. The state assessors of New York find a general depreciation in this class of property throughout all the counties in the state, and it is predicted that in a few years the occupants are likely to become tenants, instead of owners, in consequence of the mortgage sales of their lands. The difficulty seems to be that the Eastern farmers cannot compete with those in the West. In the cities, on the other hand, real estate is continually increasing in value. New York city has added $50,000,000 to its real value in the past year; Brooklyn, $20,000,000; Buffalo, $5,000,000, and so on, a condition of things which is probably duplicated in most of our New England cities.

The Patriotic Order of Sons of America in Camp.

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS

An Angry Protest Against the Clan-na-Gael and All Other Foreign Societies—A Dire Reckoning Threatened.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The thirteenth annual national camp of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America began its session this morning.

President Smith's annual address dwelt upon the necessity of committing to Americans the preservation of American principles and institutions. The control of the public schools should be a matter of the deepest concern. The naturalization laws be denounced as a sham and a fraud. By means of them in seventeen states and four territories, he asserted, it was possible to entirely overthrow the congressional act against alien and boulders in this country.

The following sentiments upon the objects now foremost in the public mind were loudly applauded: "A few more Haymarket riots and Cronin murders, intelligent, law organized bodies of foreigners who have been permitted to become citizens of this free America, and who have shown their gratitude by sending messengers loaded with dynamite back to their lands to murder people, and who have fully murdered their

OREGON'S PIONEERS.

They Yeld Their Seventeenth Annual Reunion Yesterday.

WELL REPRESENTED IN THE LINE

The Address Delivered by Judge Orange Jacobs, of Seattle.

GOV MOORE PRESENTS A FLAG

The Occidental Address by Hon. J. K. Kelly, and the Poem by Miss Maud Ingersoll—The Ball at the Exposition Building.

And now the last good-bye's said—
Sad-hearted living and the dead,
Dear-bought words together spoke,
In those sad words our cheer we're blent!
And all your chosen ways are blank!
Forward! the cracking lashes send
Their brawny necks the oxen bend
With speaking yoke an l clanking chain:—
So pass the days, so fall the nights:
A banquet of renewed delights:—
A hundred nights, a hundred days,
Then folded cloud nor silken haze,
Nor the sun's midsummer blaze
Shall dim the brown and barren plain
Along a leaden and barren plain
In silence drags the wasted train.
—Pioneer Poem.

The seventeenth annual reunion of the Oregon Pioneer Association was held in this city yesterday.

The day was a most delightful one—clear and bright, with a nice cool, refreshing breeze which made everybody comfortable; in short, it was a typical Oregon summer day.

The members of the association gathered at the court house, and at 1 P. M. formed in procession to march to the Exposition building, where the public exercises were to be held.

Mr. Fred R. Strong acted as grand marshal, with P. F. Ackell, H. Green and D. Burnside as aides. The procession was headed by the First Regiment band, after which marched Mr. David Crawford, bearing the banner of the association, and the Pioneer and Indian war veterans ranged under their proper banners, dating from 1824 down to '54. Quite a large number of ladies and older members of the association in carriages, the whole forming a procession which extended a distance of about six blocks.

THE ROUTE OF MARCH.

The procession marched down Fifth to Alder, up Alder to Twelfth, down Twelfth to B and out B to the Exposition building, where it halted. The band took its station on the sidewalk, and to its music the procession filed into the building and took the spacious music hall.

The platforms and a number of others took seats on the stage, which was handsomely decorated with evergreens and ferns and other exotic plants in pots, and the various banners of the association, the old battle-flag of Company D, First Oregon Volunteers, and the stars and stripes were displayed along the walls.

The band, stationed in the south gallery discoursed sweetest strains while the company were exchanging greetings and seating themselves.

PRAYER AND ADDRESS.

President of the Association Joseph Watt, then called upon Rev. Jesse Moreland, who opened the meeting with an eloquent and fervent prayer, in which he thanked God fervently for those who had gone before and broken the way," and might be examples to coming generations which would cause them to be as a honor to their country.

President Watt spoke of the objects of the association as being, first, social, and second, historical. He said that many pioneers who had done as much as any were not heard of, and asked all to furnish sketches of themselves and families for publication, so that they should not be forgotten. He then introduced

HON. ORANGE JACOBS,

Of Seattle, who delivered the following annual address:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:—After I had accepted your complimentary invitation to deliver the annual address on this occasion I was much troubled to know what line of thought and illustration would be more appropriate and interesting.

Your secretary kindly sent me a bound volume and a pamphlet containing all of the addresses, original and occasional and biographical heretofore delivered before your association. I not only esteem this volume and pamphlet very highly as a valuable record of pioneer men and women, and pioneer days, but to use an expression appropriate to the occasion, it showed me the "trails" of the speakers who had gone before.

I noticed, on an attentive perusal of this pioneer record, that most of the speakers who have addressed you heretofore have adopted the narrative, descriptive and historical style; Judge Williams, however, in an admirable address, discussed the principles of constitutional government upon which all our institutions rest, and the Hon. W. Lair Hill has discussed a few of the topics herein discussed by me. In the main, however, I shall pursue a line radically different from what has been taken heretofore, but I hope within the spirit of the occasion.

I shall connect with the present, take you back to the past, and shall attempt to give you my idea of the forces, and especially the men and women whose heroic courage and indomitable will, intelligent labor, and loyalty to the principles of liberty regulated by law have produced the present grand results.

WHAT CHANGES HAVE BEEN WROUGHT.

We stand to-day, in this beautiful city, in the presence of a civilization that has embodied in it all of the intellectual, moral, religious, educational and financial forces of this enlightened age. They are not latent but act ve forces. Some of you were there forty years ago. What a wonderful change has been wrought in that forty years; what we behold and enjoy to-day, is but the result of the labors, toils and privations of the pioneers.

How true it is that human advancement heretofore, at least, has only been secured by human suffering. If we trace back the paths that led to individual liberty, and to liberal and free governments among men, we will find these paths lined with the graves of patriots and rendered mournful from the still existing monuments of human suffering. The same is true in a more emphatic sense, of religious freedom. Commencing with the fierce conflicts waged for the enjoyment of the simple virtue of tolerance, and thence down the pathway of history to a not very distant period, and we find this pathway lined with the graves of martyrs and strewn with charred remains of faggots and the stake.

Equally painful has been the progress of truth among men. Born it may be in the brain of a single individual, it toyls slowly and painfully into exposition and persecution until it receives a baptism of blood and afterwards reigns supreme. In fact, free government, liberty of action and conscience, and freedom in its highest and noblest sense are the accomplished results of labor, privation and suffering.

This common truth of history finds an exemplification in the labors, privations and sufferings of the pioneers, and the grand results which to-day we see all around us.

Have we liberty—it was planted and nourished by them: have we free churches and free schools —they are but the outgrowth of the labor, foresight and piety of pioneers; have we cities, prosperous and wealthy, with a satisfactory present and a bright future—their foundation was laid by pioneer hands. Above all the broad acres of Oregon and Washington are integral portions of the American Union to-day, through their heroism and patriotism.

CHARACTER OF THE PIONEER.

There is in the character of the pioneer much to excite our admiration and much to challenge the considerate and kindly judgment of after years. His career in many respects is unique. The unsettled public domain, the theater of his exploits, his conflicts, his victories and defeats will soon be no more.

Such being the fact, it becomes us, whose lives were to some extent contemporaneous with his, and whose knowledge of the circumstances by which he was surrounded is in every way accurate, to put on record our estimate of his character for the instruction of coming generations. Character is what a person really is—reputation is what he seems to be to others. The latter is usually a reflex of the former, though not always.

Character is a mysterious compound. It consists, first, of those forces, inclinations, tendencies, bents and impulses which come along down the line of hereditary descent; and, secondly, of the moulding and directing forces which spring out of the external environment of the person. The inclination to become a pioneer sprung from the first; his actual character as a pioneer sprung from the second. To judge a man, or a class of men, rightly we must view them in the light of their surroundings.

We do them a great injustice when we attempt to estimate their character by the lights and standard of after years, and especially when the motives that prompted their acts have passed from view or, if seen, their force is no longer felt.

This is the utterance of one exceptional principle, but a uniform and universal truth. Forty years ago the pulpits of this land flamed and hissed with sulphurous thunder. This formerly seething and eruptive volcano of brimstone is to-day extinct.

Then the Christian character was more angular and muscular than it is to-day, but who shall say that the love of God was not as pure, and the love of man as unfeigned? The manifestations have changed, but the essence remains the same. To judge the acts of the earlier Christians by the present standard, is but to exclude many from the kingdom of heaven. Having said this much, I pass to a more direct consideration of my subject.

THE AMERICAN INDIAN.

It must be remembered that from the same wild valley, or dark woods, in which ascended the smoke from the humble cabin of the pioneer, there also ascended the smoke from the wigwam and the council fire of the savage. Much has been written of the character of the American Indian, but that character can be truthfully epitomized in one sentence; he had no virtue but bravery; he recognized no vice but cowardice. I use the terms, especially the latter, in a generic sense, as covering a cluster of vices, all having their root in cowardice.

The Indian never chooses an open fight. Ambush was his rule; the poisoned arrow or the deadly bullet came from the cover of a thicket, the shade of a tree or the protection of a rock. He was ever ready to start up like a lone wolf, at midnight, in a war of extermination. When he was apparently most friendly, and his seeming friendship the more demonstrative, there was the greatest danger. Such was the surroundings of the pioneer; he was in constant danger from savage beasts and still more savage men.

A character developed under the influence of such surroundings would have for its chief attributes, watchfulness, decision, self-reliance, and a constantly decreasing confidence in Indian fidelity and virtue. To prevent ambuscade he had no frequented path; no accustomed haunts. He was always on the alert, his rifle ready, his ammunition hand. Confronted by danger, he met him he acted with prompt and deadly decision. There was the sharp crack of the rifle, and his footman bit the dust. You say he was cruel—we say he was but obeying the law of self-preservation. His tread was as noiseless as that of a panther whose patrimonial jungle he often invaded. His endurance and fortitude were wonderful. Hunger, cold and privations had no terror for him.

In the early period of his pioneering he sowed not, neither did he reap. His keen eye and trusted rifle were his purveyors; the forest, the stream, the lakes and the ocean shore were his larders. Bread was a luxury he did not often enjoy. His vigorous health, his active and powerful muscular forces, his capacity for great endurance, as well as his wants of all knowledges of all fatigue, show that bread, though a covenant, is not a necessary aliment for the development of a full and vigorous manhood.

The pioneer was orthodox in his religious belief. By this I mean he was deeply impressed with the existence of a God, and had a profound reverence for him. No matter what his practices were, this belief at times filled him with veneration and awe. Downright atheism is an exotic only thriving in the hot-house of civilization. Nature has no voice of cold negation for her children. All her laws, her lessons, her voicings, are positive. As he stood, a lonely spectator in the or listened to the roar of the storm, while the giants of the forests swayed to and fro, impelled by its fury, or heard the booming thunder and saw the lightning's glare, he heard in all of this the voice of God, and felt in the solemn surroundings his presence.

As he stood on the beetling crag, or gazed with solemn awe into the soulless canyon, or climbed to the top of the mountain peak and surveyed the field of mountains all around, with the rivers and valleys and lakes beyond; as the nature in all her beauty, grandeur and sublimity, he was deeply and profoundly impressed with ideas of an intelligent first cause. To this conclusion, also, tended all his hostages and all of the occult forces of his nature, inspired by silence, by solitude, by the majesty of nature, and by the active and tremendous forces in earth, air and the starlit firmament beyond.

Superadded to this pure vein of religious belief in the character of the pioneer, I am free to admit that there was in many of them a dash of superstition. To the attentive student of nature and her laws this is not at all astonishing.

The life of the pioneer was a lonely one. He had no books, save possibly the Bible. He had no companionship but nature. He had no pictures but flowers and the variegated scenes of nature, glorified by the god of day or rendered grand and terrible by the fury of the storm god. His tendencies of moral life tended inward. Fancy and imagination had loose rein. Their pictures, fleshed on the mirror of the soul, grew from day to day in distinctness. That on returning to his humble cabin in the gloom of night he should see the images created by imagination, or as he wandered in the deep solitude of the continuous woods by day, that he should imagine that he heard the mysterious voicings and whisperings, is not at all astonishing.

There were also mysterious occasions in his eventful life that excited his wonder and balked his power of explanation.

While his eye was undimmed and his nerves unshaken, he would miss game of which he was sorely in need while the same was in easy range; while at other times he sent the bullet with deadly precision on its fated mission while the game was bounding in full flight through the thick forest.

TRUES MEN NEVER LIVED.

Add to this the potential power of solitude, the deepening gloom of the dark woods and the mysterious voices of nature; (animate and inanimate), and you can pardon the dash of superstition in the character of the pioneer. Truer men never lived. Braver men never trod the earth. If their vices were marked, their virtues were also. Though their fare was scanty their hospitality was unbounded. You were welcome to all their larder afforded.

I now propose to notice a characteristic of pioneer life that runs down through the first, second and third classes of the same. I have already adverted to the patent fact that the pioneer was without books and papers. His conversation, if any, consisted of the narration of the exploits and experiences of his own life. It was autobiography spoken, not written. It consisted of dangers met and conquered, of difficulties encountered and successfully overcome, of escapes narrowly effected and full of danger, of situations solemn and ludicrous, of wants pressing and imminent of vigils long, and victories and defeats.

When warmed with generous wine or more fiery concoctions, the pioneer gave chapters of the work and life of his inner consciousness, of his loves, his hates, his expectations, his desires, the passions that had swayed him, and the mysterious forces that had at times unnerved him.

This tendency to personal narration has become, to some extent, traditional, and is a marked characteristic of pioneer or Western society. In the older civilization conversation is confined to the events and topics of the day as furnished by the telegraph and daily press: it concerns men in the aggregate.

In the younger civilization conversation runs on the events and experiences of personal life; it concerns man as an individual.

I do not intend in discussing the question as to which is the better of the two, I simply state it. It is from this characteristic that Western men get the reputation of "Drawing a long bow."

They got it in the regular line of descent and will pass out of it as their individuality is swallowed up in the surging volume of humanity. While what has been said above has general application to all classes of pioneers, it has particular and special application to what is generally known as the farmer class.

After them and often commingling with them came the home-seekers and home-builders. This latter class was usually distinguished by the presence of family and mother, the little ones and all the household gods. I have always been a great admirer of not only the true but of the grand heroism of that wife and mother.

Love for husband and little ones, and the heroic desire to be a helpmeet to the husband in the noble work of home building were her sustaining inspiration in the lonely solitude and savage surroundings of the wilderness.

THE VICTORIES OF PEACE.

"Peace," says the poet, "has her victories no less renowned than war." When we recount the lonely toil, the patient endurance, the privations and deaths of these queens of the lonely ocabins, when we remember the cheerful fortitude with which they endured want and privations, and the unflinching heroism evinced by them in times of danger, and especially now when we contemplate the magnificent result of their endurance, we can truthfully affirm that "Peace has her victories no less renowned than those of war."

It is an impossible task for me, with my limited powers of generalization and description to present in a few sentences a correct and just synopsis of the character of the l one-builder.

He had a fixed and noble purpose to which all things else was subordinate. That purpose was the predominating power o all his efforts and of his life. In its object was included not himself alone, but those related to and dependent upon him. Home, wife, children and kindred, the domestic circle and took into consideration the influence which should prevail in the future community which should gather around him as a nucleus. His first duty was to remove the obstructions of nature, and to subject her genial forces to the wants and necessities of man.

He was not only laying the foundations of an infant community, but of an empire. His first duty was to provide for animal wants. After that with the incoming of immigration, educational, moral, religious and political forces were to be generated and these to be shaped in harmony with republican institutions and self government.

Though beyond the direct operation of the governing power he was loyal to liberty, to justice and to right. And let me say that under his public administration the absolute rights of man were as sacred—yea, even more so—than they are under the complicated machinery of courts, laws, and lawyers. Such is a brief synopsis of the difficulties encountered, the influences that surrounded, the motives that inspired and the grand results achieved by the home-b ilder.

In the disposition and character of these homebuilders were the germs of government and empire. Many of their acts were historic. In this last expression I do them an honor and give to their acts a far-reaching effect and duration that stamps them with the qualities of the immortal.

If the grand volume of human acts and events how few are historic! It was not so with the acts of the pioneers or the events of pioneer life. I can safely say that a greater proportion of their acts and attending events were fuller of historic significance and consequences than the personal acts and events of to-day or any time preceding their advent.

Their coming to the wilderness "where rolled the Oregon, and heard no sound save its own dashings"—was of itself, aside from its privations and sacrifices, a grand historic event. It was with it the annexation of a domain large enough and grand enough for a mighty empire.

In its far reaching and un sound consequence it was one of those peaceful victories which are more renowned than those achieved by successful war. In later years territory was annexed along the southwestern line of the republic by the valor of American arms; but a larger and finer domain was acquired along the northern line peacefully, by the energy, pluck and heroism of pioneers.

The statement of the simple fact, without any of the embellishment of rhetoric, and without the amplification of attendant circumstances, carries with it fullness of meaning. The young with unperishable honor the achievements of the pioneer.

And this historic fact as time rolls on and population and wealth increases, and the resources of this vast region are fully known and developed and the multiplied engin ry of a free people and of a free government are in full operation throughout this extended domain—will grow with accumulative force and grandeur to the honor and glory of the pioneer.

THE HOME-BUILDER HAD A TENDENCY

To, and a genius for government. He brought with him as an integral part of his mental and moral constitution a love for, and a belief in, what is known as common law as the absolute, and what is known in the patriotic language of his country, as the inherent rights of man.

He had no conceptions of liberty not regulated by law. He sought its realization only in obedience to law.

Law with him outside of certain organic and fundamental truths was but the formal and solemn expression of the will of the majority. With this simple basis of government in mind he was not long in settling in motion the machinery for ascertaining this majority will and securing its formal expression.

This to him, had the majesty of law and demanded and secured his obedience. The history of the provisional government of Oregon is a remarkable history. So far as I know, it has no parallel in the annals of the world.

Other governments came into existence in obedience to the mandate of superior power or official authorization or government upon the people by some successful military conqueror or heredity chieftain.

We, in Washington territory to-day, are in a ferment of organic parturition, but it is obedience to federal authorization.

The provisional government of Oregon sprung from none of these sources of authority. It came from the people, and had for its only foundation that consent.

To use the language of the immortal Lincoln, "it was a government of the people, by the people, and for the people." Its legislative enactments were recognized as binding on the conscience of the people and everywhere obeyed.

Their interpretation and construction by the tribunals established always and everywhere had an enlightened regard for the absolute or inalienable rights of man.

With no disrespect for the present complicated machinery of courts and lawyers, I am of the opinion that the simplicity, directness and promptness of pioneer days could be studied and imitated, not only with benefit to the people, but for the advancement of justice. The judgments and decrees of these tribunals—civil or criminal —sweeping over the whole field of jurisprudence, were cheerfully obeyed, or else enforced.

THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT,

Fully equipped in all its departments, established justice, promoted the general welfare and established liberty regulated by law. The provisional government thus organized, in its displacement, necessarily removed all other government, authority, dominion and power.

It was the actual taking of possession as an integral portion of the federal domain of all the country south, at least of the 49th parallel of north latitude and the extension over it the dominion and laws of the United States officers. It not only touch the power and patriotism of the American people, but it carried with it a persuasive force which was conclusive in subsequent negotiations.

It is true that the pioneers, inspired, possibly, by a nearer and fuller view of the priceless value of the dominion in dispute and the importance of its acquisition in a material point of view, were for pushing the 49th parallel to 54 40, but in a Federal government, more conservative, yielded to the principle of uniformity resulting from extension of an existing line; but the historic fact still remains that the actual possession of the country by settlement and the extension over it of the laws of the provisional government was a potential decision of the boundary question.

I have thus briefly sketched the character and achievements of the pioneer. I have claimed as the result of his labor the foundation of a commonwealth which is now the foundation of a mighty commonwealth. History, I doubt not, will concede the claim.

AN ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR MOORE.

Governor Miles C. Moore, of Washington territory, was then introduced and in behalf of Mrs. H. M. Chase, of Walla Walla, presented a beautiful flag to the Indian war veterans. He said:

Indian War Veterans of Oregon and Washington:—An old friend of mine and comrade of yours whom you honored yesterday by making him grand commander of your organization, finding it impossible to attend the encampment, this year has sent you a beautiful flag. He has requested me to present it as a testimonial of his esteem for his old comrades and friends.

No gift more appropriate could have been selected. To a loyal American citizen an American flag is always an inspiration. It stands everywhere for human liberty; it stands for the rights of man; it stands for the power, the dignity, the imperishable glory of his country.

To those who have fought beneath its folds, and followed it in battle, whether through the fiery billows of civil war, or beating back savage foes on the far frontier it is simply sacred.

Your days of warfare are over. It is not probable you will ever again feel "the joy of battle," or see this flag upon the battle's front but the sight of it will stir within you memories of the conflict that raged so fiercely along our border a third of a century ago, and bind you closer in the bonds of friendship and affection.

It is due to your struggles, and those of the early pioneers assembled with you here to-day, that the stars and stripes are now floating peacefully over Washington and Oregon.

Whether Dr. Whitman rode to Washington in midwinter and made the representations with which he was accredited, or whether he did not, we will not now debate. No one will dispute the fact that the presence here in Oregon of American pioneers, in whose bosoms burned a love for the old flag, saved the Northwestern territories to the United States.

The pampered children of civilization, arriving here after a five days' endurance of the privations of a Pullman palace car to find homes and fortune in this favored land, have little conception of the perils and sufferings endured by the brave women and lion-hearted men whom they sometimes flippantly allude to as "mossbacks." They should remember it was the "mossback" who "hewed out the paths in the wilderness," but back the average foes and made possible the civilization we all enjoy.

The rising generation has but a faint appreciation of your heroic struggles; the historians of the century will, however, record your achievements and render a tardy tribute to your virtues. In the building of the nation you have borne an honored part.

There will be no more pioneers; no more Indian war veterans. The struggle which began at Plymouth in 1620, between civilization and savagery, has ended here on the shores of the Pacific. Civilization has gone on "trampling down barbarism and rearing states," until there is no new country to reclaim. Over B. Washington we are preparing to get into our starched clothes. We are laying the foundation of an empire; and upon the site in which it is hoped the coming millions will find good government and happy homes, in which it is not unreasonable to ex ect, by reason of its climatic and other advantages the human race will attain its highest development. An empire that will continue to flourish in undiminished splendor ages hence. Side by side with her in her triumphal march will be found her great sister to whom she is bound by ties of common origin by ties of mutual anxiety and interest.

In behalf of the sister state, Washington, I wish to bear testimony to her appreciation of your distinguished services in her early wars. She will ever hold you all in grateful remembrance.

I now commit this flag to your keeping, and express a hope that you may yet live to see it wave upon many happy returns of this interesting occasion.

The flag was brought to the front of the stage by Mr. Fred Castleman, who unfurled and waved it amid great applause. It was accepted by Grand Commander of Indian War Veterans L. F. Mosher and given in charge of Captain J. H. McMillan, grand marshal.

ACCEPTANCE OF THE FLAG.

In accepting the flag Mr. Mosher spoke as follows:

The presentation of a flag to the association of Indian War Veterans is a matter to be proud of, as a recognition of their services in the days of Oregon's sorest need, and the fact that it is presented by the governor of the coming state of Washington adds to its value. In the reception of the flag I can add little to what has been said by Governor Moore. In the darkest days of Indian hostilities Oregon and Washington were one, and the domestic circle and took into consideration the influence which should prevail in the future community which should gather around him as a nucleus. His first duty was to remove the obstructions of nature, and to subject her genial forces to the wants and necessities of man.

He was not only laying the foundations of an infant community, but of an empire. His first duty was to provide for animal wants. THE BALL LAST EVENING.

EXPOSITION BUILDING PRESENTS A BEAUTIFUL SCENE—2000 PERSONS PRESENT.

The ball at the Exposition building in the evening was not only the grandest affair of the kind ever seen at a Pioneers' reunion but one of the finest ever given in the city. The most select circles of society were present, and the beautiful toilets, the handsome and brilliantly lighted hall, the gaily dressed people who filled the galleries, formed a scene which astonished and delighted not only the participants, but all present.

Over 2000 persons were present but there was plenty of room for both dancers and spectators. The spring board of the First regiment furnished splendid music and when they struck up "Golden Showers" and the elegantly dressed young ladies and their partners in full dress waltzed out on the floor without any preliminary grand march it seemed as if some fairy scene was being enacted there. The first dance pioneers were conspicuous by their absence, but after a while Messrs. T. Brook Tevell, C. B. Bellinger, Dr. Taylor and others, who are just as young as they used to be, joined in the giddy dance, and went through the Centennial Lancers with as much grace and spirit as any of the boys.

The third dance was a schottische, and when the band struck up the inspiring air of "Goodbye, Mahaffey," but few could resist the temptation to dance, and the floor was crowded with a merry throng. Dancing was kept up till a late hour, and the ball was pronounced by all one of the most delightful of the season, and those who participated, both young and old will remember it with pleasure, and endeavor to, if possible, surpass it on the next meeting of the pioneers here.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

APPROPRIATE RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of this association was held last evening in the art gallery of the new Exposition building at 8:30 o'clock, Joseph Watt, president, presiding. An unusually large number of members were present.

The following preamble and resolutions were offered by John Minto, of Marion county, and enthusiastically and unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The generous conduct of the citizens of Portland in presenting to the Oregon Pioneer Association the oil painting of Dr. John McLoughlin has enabled the association to place the semblance of that friend and benefactor of the early American settlers in the senate chamber of the capitol as the property of the people of Oregon; and

WHEREAS, The governor, senators and representatives of the state have shown a generous and kindly appreciation of the deeds of this association to have the oil painting of the friend of the earliest home builders of this coast placed in a well-deserved position amongst the portraits of the notable men of this commonwealth:

Resolved, That we thank the citizens of Portland for their generous gift of the picture of Dr. John McLoughlin to this association.

Resolved, That we thank the governor and members of the legislative assembly for the manner in which they have enabled this association to place upon the capitol of the state, and upon its archives the likeness of our friend of the early days as an expression of our gratitude.

Resolved, That we thank the good people of Portland for their hospitable treatment of us as an Association in providing places of meeting and other conveniences.

Resolved, That we thank those controlling our lines of transportation for the generous treatment we receive from them, and we feel that what we have done to improve the speed of power and prosperity in that fair land has not been thrown upon barren ground.

At this point the president stated that the reports of the secretary and treasurer for the past year having been read and approved by the board of directors at its meeting last October, they would be omitted at this time, especially since these reports were in print in the annual transactions for 1888.

The election of officers was the next business transacted, with the following result: President, John Minto, of Marion county; vice-president, H. W. Corbett, of Multnomah county; secretary, George H. Himes, (re-elected), of Multnomah county; treasurer, John M. Bacon, (re-elected), of Clackamas county; corresponding secretary, H. S. Lyman, of Multnomah county; directors, F. X. Matthieu, of Marion county; E. P. Earhart, of Multnomah county; Medorem Crawford, of Yamhill county.

The question of extending the limit of membership for admission into the association up to 1859, in accordance with the resolution offered at the last meeting of the board of directors for the consideration of this meeting, was taken up and discussed at length by J. C. Carson, James Winstdn, Dr. C. C. Strong, Dr. Geiger, T. C. Shaw, T. A. Wood, F. V. Holman, George H. Himes and others. The sentiment of the meeting being evidently opposed to extending the time beyond the present date, yet the discussion taking a wide range, without prospect of coming to a vote within any reasonable time, upon motion of Dr. C. C. Strong the whole matter was tabled by a large vote.

Notice was given by George H. Himes to the effect that at the next annual meeting he would offer an amendment to the constitution, providing that the children of pioneers might become members of the association.

No further business appearing, the association adjourned.

THEY ADOPTED A MOTTO.

The Grand Encampment of Indian War Veterans met pursuant to adjournment in the council chambers, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, T. C. Shaw, vice-grand commander, presiding.

The words Omnia Solum Patria Est, inscribed on the flag of the organization, were adopted as the motto of the grand encampment.

Comrades J. R. McMillen, F. F. Castleman and M. B. Hall were appointed to visit Colonel W. W. Chapman and tender to him the sorrow and sympathy of the grand encampment in his affliction.

Comrades H. M. Chase, John Kelsay, J. McMillen, J. B. Wall, and Lee Laughlin were appointed a committee on constitution and by-laws, to report at the next annual meeting.

After returning the usual vote of thanks to the city, Portland comrades and friends, for hearty kindnesses shown, the encampment adjourned sine die.

In the afternoon many of the old veterans participated in the street parade given by the association of pioneers, and also in the exercises at the Exposition building, both after the parade and in the evening.

A PRACTICAL SHOWING.

Reduction of Pilotage and Other Charges—A Reasonable Statement from Astoria.

Astoria Transcript.

In referring to this subject once more let us be distinctly understood as desiring to allay rather than irritate any contentious feeling. That has been our object in all the late discussions. Ex post facto agitation of the subject, with the asperity it must engender, can certainly be productive of none but disastrous effects to the interest that should always have the best friendship and protection of the champions of commerce on the Columbia river.

In handling this bar and pilotage question, there is but one equitable way to do it, and that is to go straight to facts and figures contained therein. As we all understand, it is now settled, under the provisions of a law, by those persons we must look to for the merits of the same will be determined by their effects, and these only must we face in order to give a just and honest verdict. For this purpose the Transcript has taken the pains to go to the records for some figures in the case. They make a square comparison and tell their own story. They are based upon the ship Vandalia, showing her relative expenses in 1887 and 1889, and are as follows:

FLOOD AFTER FLOOD.

The floods of water in Pennsylvania have been followed by floods of foolish speech. The latter, however, have not been confined to Pennsylvania. The New York Witness, a journal professedly religious, very distinctly intimates that the Conemaugh disaster was of divine origin, in the nature of a punishment for the sins of the people for those sins. That pious journal admits that it was very sad, but says that "the fact is even sadder that the people of this noble country are so indifferent to the claims of that God who has showered so many blessings upon them as to need this awful warning." Were the Conemaugh people, then, worse than others, or were they punished for the sins of all? This recalls the old question: "Those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?"

While intelligence and enlightenment often go with religious feeling on the other hand ignorance, superstition and folly are very frequently its accompaniments. Thus, the enlightened religious mind takes a rational view of these disasters. It sees at once that the disasters ought to have been prevented by human foresight. But the superstitious mind refuses to see that the occurrences were preventable, and hence we have long homilies on the displeasure and wrath of God who is punishing the people for their sins.

A paper at New Brighton Pa., which has been giving ardent support to the prohibition amendment, finds that the destructive floods were poured down on those who were not in favor of prohibition, and this it considers a fact of "awful significance." "All the counties," it says, "which have suffered from the floods were against the amendment." Evidently it did not occur to the over-zealous organ of prohibition that it was handling a dangerous back-action argument. For was it not water that produced all this destruction?

Rev. James Madden of Kansas has been in Pennsylvania stumping for prohibition. He was in Johnstown when the flood came, and heard the warning in time to fly to a place of safety. "But," he added, "those who did not heed the warning, and waited, were drowned, and went to hell." From this one might infer that only the good people who were opposing the amendment were drowned; but in fact, as we have been told, many of the good people of the place were also lost. The calamity, as in all such cases, fell impartially on the just and the unjust, precisely as do the favors and blessings of heaven.

It will hardly do to trust to weak dams, even if the people below them are ardent prohibitionists, or Christians of the best type. The science of hydrodynamics, the same as other branches of science, is entirely free from partiality for creeds or opinions, and quite as free from prejudice or enmity against them. Hence we are not likely to find it adopted as a principle of engineering that it isn't necessary to have as strong a dam to protect Christians and prohibitionists as Turks, infidels and beer-drinkers, against a rush of waters.

A QUESTION OF RACE.

"Birds of a feather flock together," says the old proverb. So it is with the negroes of the South. The thinly populated states afford them no attraction, but Mississippi actually allures them, because within its borders blacks outnumber whites so far that they feel the influence of numbers. In 1870 the colored people there outnumbered the whites by 60,511; in 1880 the majority had grown to 172,823, and it is believed the colored people are now fully 350,000 in excess. They flock there rapidly, and by 1900 the blacks will be nearly, or fully, two to one. What the outcome will be when the blacks are in these greater numbers and realize their strength is a question of interest, because it will indicate whether with greatly superior numbers the race so long enslaved can ever assert themselves and claim power.

It is evident that the Southern whites are conscious of their position and aware of the danger that lies in wait for white supremacy in the common schools. They are not apparently anxious to have common schools and permit education to be general, and the power that knowledge gives diffused through the black mass. Among the blacks there are many who posses very active perceptions and catch hold of ideas quickly. There are some—perhaps many—who are capable of being educated, but not with a discipline that is the result of hereditary power. Whatever improvement and progress the blacks may make, it will require more than one generation—perhaps more than one century—to discipline the wayward imaginings, to school the undisciplined intellect, to give self-confidence to a race that has never known civilization on equal grounds.

Whether in the future, when time, the great restorer, shall have lent healing to human ills, there shall be an American people of every shade and character, made homogeneous by long experience, whether the educated blacks shall take their place as a race by themselves and maintain social life and privileges on their own account, whether no lapse of time shall succeed in abolishing the distinctions that have so long stood guard over American life and character—these are questions not easily answered. The only solution must rest with time. Whatever the result may be, it cannot be entirely accomplished for ages. If not born to intellect no race can acquire it and compete at once with a race of higher intellect.

THE LEGAL CONSCIENCE.

An eminent jurist of this city informs us that Mr. Thomas G. Shearman, in his lecture last Sunday night said among other things that "the people had no right to charge the great capitalists of the country with having stolen their vast fortunes, because people were responsible for the legislation under which these men had found legal opportunity to acquire these millions." This is logic that will not hold water. To illustrate: When Mr. Shearman and David Dudley Field used to go before the corrupt judges of the Tammany and Erie ring and make a motion for a judicial ratification of a palpable theft or piracy on part of their clients Gould, Fisk & Co., were the people to blame because Barnard, Cardozo and Ingraham betrayed their trust? Field and Shearman knew that these judges were in the pockets of their clients and that they would grant any legal outrage asked of them. Field and Shearman knew that these judges were not granting Gould & Co. their simple rights in law and equity, but were simply spitting on their ermine because they were part and parcel of the Tammany-Erie ring, of whose notorious, infamous corruption Field and Shearman knew as much as anybody. Now Gould, and other fellows of his sort, get their crimes as railroad wreckers ratified, and roll up great fortunes, not because of the people, nor because of the law, save when a legislator sells out as the New York judges did to Tweed and Gould, but they roll up their great fortunes in spite of the people by the artful aid of just such lawyers as Field and Shearman and Wager Swayne, who found two United States judges at the West willing to rally Gould's wrecking of Wabash, only to be overruled by honest Judge Gresham. As a matter of fact, there would be comparatively few of these great fortunes to-day had it not been that just such servitude and wicked judges and unscrupulous lawyers, who sell out or betray their clients, as Mr. Shearman, of course cannot afford to admit that these men stole their money, because he helped them steal it by his professional ability, exercised before a corrupt or sand-blind court.

PLUTOCRACY.

The New York World is not satisfied with the election of Mr. Brice to the chairmanship of the democratic national committee. It objects to him that he is "a millionaire railroad manipulator," and sarcastically says that "such a man at the head of the democratic national committee will be a fertile menace to the money power!" Looking for reasons for his election the World can find only this one, namely, that "he made up the deficit of the committee at the close of the campaign, and is credited with an expenditure of $250,000 for Cleveland last year."

Isn't this alarmingly suggestive of "plutocratic tendencies" in the democratic party? We may commend it to the little organs of that party in Oregon that believe, or profess to believe, that the republican party is the exclusive home of plutocracy, is organized purely on wealth, and is the only party flagitious enough to seek power by corruption of the suffrage. What costs have caused that prodigious deficit in payment for democratic campaign work last year that the World tells us Mr. Brice made up? We know that Cleveland paid in $10,000; that nearly every member of his cabinet paid as much and some of them more; that Barnum, Scott and other millionaires were at the front as managers of the campaign; that the office-holders generally were drawn upon for an enormous aggregate. And yet there was deficit of $250,000, which Mr. Brice, "a millionaire railroad manipulator," has stepped forward and paid; and now we have it from highest democratic authority that the off-hanmship of the democratic national committee has been given him as his reward.

We share the fears of the World that the democratic party, with this record before the country, will not be able to pose with any success as the sole defender of our incomparable political system against the evils of plutocracy.

There is intense competition among the Chicago newspapers in the enterprise of getting "confessions" out of Woodruff. The consequence is that the vagabond makes one and sometimes two confessions a day, and each latest confession is a new story that revokes all preceding ones. But one fact appears to be established, namely, that Woodruff is used to cut away and dispose of the body of Cronin. In this there is enough to hang him.

A Baker City paper says: "Nearly one thousand dollars was paid THE OREGONIAN for a write-up of Baker City." Not one dime was paid THE OREGONIAN for a write-up of Baker City.

Lend Your Constabulary a Hand.

Constitutions are much alike, and in nine-tenths of us the same causes produce the same effects. Vertigo, dizziness, or pain of any kind, excepting that of natural decay, can come only from a disordered condition of the blood which we have not sufficient vitality to throw off without help. Therefore, the proper thing to do is to get immediately the necessary help. No aid is more prompt than Ayer's Pills. When you feel the attack coming on take from three to ten of these pills, according to your weight, and be relieved at once. Never put off the taking by thinking you will get well without it. Take the pills and do not rack the constitution.

Enormous Profits of the Sugar Trust.

New York World.

The stories of the enormous gains of the trust, extravagant as they seem, are probably not much exaggerated, although some accounts put them as high as from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year on a capital of $50,000,000. And these unreasonable and unjust profits are made out of the necessities of the people. The millions to whom an advance of 2 or 3 cents a pound on sugar means poverty, consequent disease, if not death, deprivation and suffering, are the victims from whom the gains of the millionaire monopolists are extorted.

FOR NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. E. C. McCoy, Algona, Ia., says: "I have used it in cases of dyspepsia, nervous exhaustion and wakefulness, with pleasant results. Also think it of great service in depressed condition of the system resulting from biliary derangement."

Through Pullman sleepers and dining cars; also second-class sleepers through to the East via Northern Pacific Railroad. Office, No. 121 First St., corner Washington.

PACIFIC UNIVERSITY.

Commencement Week at Forest Grove—Programme of Exercises.

FOREST GROVE, June 18.

On Saturday evening the pupils of the musical department appeared in a public recital at the Congregational church. The large room was crowded with an audience which, judging from the frequent applause, was most agreeably entertained. The performers all rendered their parts most creditably, thus reflecting the most careful attention upon the part of the teacher of the department, Mrs. Edwards. There were three candidates for graduation: Miss Day Smith, vocal, and Mrs. Dr. Ward and Miss Ethel Merryman instrumental. At the conclusion of the programme, each of the above named were presented with a diploma of graduation.

The musical department of Pacific university is thoroughly established and a permanently good work is being carried on.

The Baccalaureate sermon by President Ellis on Sunday morning, was indeed a master production. Any comment in this connection is useless, as its early publication in the columns of THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN will place it before the public.

The university sermon was delivered in the evening by Rev. T. E. Clapp, of Portland, superintendent of home missions.

The commencement exercises take place tomorrow. Following is the programme:

Vocal Solo—"He Was a Prince".....P. Lynes
Miss Macrum
Prayer.
Junior Oration.....America's Possibilities
William S. Macrum.
GRADUATING CLASS
Oration.....Modern Ethnical Migration
Sidney E. Marsh, Forest Grove
Vocal Solo—"O, My Fernando".....Donizetti
Miss Day Smith.
Essay.....Monuments
Mattie E. Koontz, Napavine, Wash.

Clay McNamee, Dilly.
Piano Solo—"Hungarian Rhapsody".....Liszt
Mrs. Edwards.
Commencement Address.....Rev. H. V. Rominger
Conferring Degrees.
Vocal Solo—"When the Tide Comes In"...Millard
Miss Macrum.

AN ERRONEOUS REPORT.

SEATTLE, W. T., June 18.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Enclose your article in the Sunday paper headed "A Natural Mistake, but a Stupid One." You have been wholly misinformed as to that point. We have taken special pains to send away clerks, musicians, actors, and the class of persons who cannot perform manual labor; in fact have advised them to no, and to my knowledge have refused no case of that kind of merit. We have passed a number of ladies to Portland, Spokane, and as far as St. Paul, a large number to San Francisco; and dress-makers and type-writers have been kindly treated. Few of these have asked assistance and in no case has it been refused, to my knowledge. House servants, but few have applied, and in all cases of merit, have been furnished employment in their avocation or forwarded where they wished to go. Laborers and mechanics have been advised that work would be abundant soon, but on request, many have been sent away. As must necessarily be the case, there are cases in which the unworthy are relieved and the worthy overlooked. The committee has made special efforts not to fall into the very error you speak of. The writer is an earnest believer in woman suffrage and the equal rights of woman, and makes earnest efforts to guard against discrimination.

J. R. LEWIS.
Chairman Relief Committee.

BRIEF MENTION.

Pleasure boats for rent, at Stark street.

Go to H. Sinsheimer, No. 214 First st., for the best pianos and organs. He carries only the standard instruments, such as Steinway & Sons and other pianos, Burdett and Story and Clark organs, the best in the world. Easy payments.

ANOTHER FIRE RESPONSE.—Contracts were signed by Messrs. Lewis & Vanston, at the office of Architect A. M. Milwain, for a $40,000 remodel of and two-story frame dwelling, to be erected on the northeast corner of Tenth and Mill streets, for Mrs. L. M. Bryant.

"Music hath charms, etc., "but not unless it really is music. A perfect piano under the master touch of an artist strikes the chord in even the savage breast. Such an instrument is the Matchless Kroast. Such an instrument is the Matchless Decker Brothers' piano, kept only by The Kohler & Chase Music House, of this city. When you want anything in their line, from a shout of music to an elegant piano or organ be sure to call upon this house.

LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN.

MR. C. E. Bolton delighted another large audience with his magnificent panoramic views and entertaining lecture at the Taberna last evening. Taking up the lecture where he left off Monday night, (Mighty London) the lecturer pictured out the journey from London to Stockholm, and thence across Scandinavia to the west coast of Norway, and up the coast by sea to North Cape. Here the enchanting beauty of the midnight sun was greatly admired. The lecture was illustrated with views of Scandinavian people and dress, the early vikings, statue of Liet Erickson, and closed with a realistic representation of the rescue of Greeley. This evening Mr. Bolton gives his lecture on "Re-united Germany."

FOR SALE.—Ten well-broken driving horses. Inquire at City Stable, corner Second and Stark streets.

PORTLAND, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19.

THE FIGHT BETWEEN THE FACTIONS.

A good many citizens did not care a button which faction won in the municipal election on Monday, because they felt very much like the man who, when asked which of two roads to take, replied: "Each is worse than the other, and if you take either you will wish you had taken the other." If decent and intelligent voters had felt that a change in the control of the city government stood for any assurance of reform, a change would have been easily secured by a large majority. But everybody knows that neither faction has the slightest intention of using its power for the benefit of the city. Portland, as we heard a tourist from Chicago say the other day, is the most filthy city in the Northern states, and its filthiness is not chiefly limited to the Chinese quarter. Any one who walks through Morrison, Washington, Alder, or any of our principal streets early in the morning, can see the rotting vegetable matter in the gutters, can catch the odor of the seventy separate stinks that Coleridge found in the city of Cologne. The water sprinkler goes round with his cart and the tradesmen wash off their store fronts; but while this lays the dust it only fills the gutters with rotting garbage, and makes their last state of decay worst than the first. These gutters ought to be shoveled out clean of all this matter; the sewers ought to be liberally flushed with water; the water closets and traps of every lodging house examined; the manholes of the sewers ought to be closely capped; the cellars of every hotel, restaurant and public building ought to be frequently inspected, and a board of health created with full powers to enforce sanitary decency.

It is said there are a very large number of cases of typhoid fever in the city to-day—a fearfully fatal disease, a disease which without the most careful vigilance on part of the authorities and the doctors is constantly spreading itself. The only time when the city government showed the slightest sanitary energy or capacity was during the smallpox fright. They were roused to this effort, because smallpox is a loathsome and disfiguring disease and frightens so many people away from town that the clamors of the business community roused the authorities to action. But any doctor knows that typhoid fever is, like diphtheria, more fatal than smallpox in the towns and cities of this coast. And then, think of the prejudice against Portland that is created in the mind of an intelligent tourist, who sees our gutters full of rot, and smells raw sewage in every block he covers in his walk. It makes the impression of a lazy, easy-going people, too listless to insist upon ordinary civic cleanliness and the enforcement of the ordinances for the protection of the public health. Things will never be any better until typhoid fever, or diphtheria, or scarletina ravages the families of those who set up and own our city government, just as railway corporations never protect the public until juries mulct them in damages or their own families perish because somebody blundered.

"Boss" Shepherd was charged in Washington with having wasted the city treasury by his extravagance, but he changed Washington from a dirty, mean and unhealthy pest hole into one of the most beautiful and delightful cities in the world. General Butler was called "Beast Butler" when he ruled New Orleans, yet he kept the city absolutely clean and absolutely free from yellow fever. But with us, under either faction, we get small results for our heavy taxes and squandered treasure. The city ordinances are, as a rule, excellent, but the most important of them are not enforced; simply because our police force is not intended for use in the legitimate functions of a police, but is only a part of a political machine which controls patronage and pedcles it out where it can do most good. In no day of the year are the police so energetic and so visible to the naked eye as on election day. They are not energetic guardians of the public peace, only eager and unscrupulous partisans of the particular faction that controls the police board. They know that they are not appointed for any special fitness they may have for a policeman's duty, but to be used as political strikers. What can be expected of a city government where every man knows he will lose his head if he does not execute the work of a factional partisan, work without hesitation or delay? We are not blaming these men who do what their "boss" tells them, but the shame is with the public that is too lazy, listless or morally indifferent to our wretched and filthy state to take up arms against this sea of stinks. A faction that would promise a fair collection of taxes and enforcement of the health ordinances to the extent of making our city healthy and clean as well as beautiful, would win the election, but when Polonius, weak in the hams and with eyes purging plum tree gum, is the type city policeman, and Mr. Ben Allen, in "Pickwick Papers," is the type health officer, who can be expected to care much about the issue of a city election?

DOCTRINES OF UNIVERSALISM

I consider Universalists, Unitarians and so-called Liberal Christians more harmful than avowed infidels, inasmuch as the latter, by their open denial of Bible truths, are not so likely to lead astray true Christians as the "saving in hell" ideas of the former, which seem so plausible and attractive to the unwary.—Doctor of Divinity.

The above remark smacks strongly of the illiterate "circuit-rider" of the past generation who invariably began his discourse by denouncing all unorthodox churches, and declaiming on the absurdity of the disbelief in eternal retribution. The remark may have been somewhat excusable in him, owing to his dense ignorance and bigotry; but that reason should not hold good for a doctor of divinity in these, the declining years of the nineteenth century.

It is a well-known fact that the members of the Unitarian church come almost exclusively from the deep-thinking and best educated class of believers in religion. And, as they are well represented in the church population of the Northwest, they need no outsiders to defend them.

I wish, however, to answer the slur on the Universalist church, in whose creed I am a humble believer, even though such a belief may make me worse than an infidel or an atheist.

No true Universalist believes that sinners will be saved in their sins, or that wicked men will go to heaven in all their weakness and depravity.

But, on the contrary, may I not ask if those who wrongfully condemn us do not themselves believe that God will in reality save millions of mankind in their sins? They profess to believe that he has somewhere within his domain, a vast prison-house, long, wide and deep; that he has dedicated it to every vile abomination, and into its filthy portals he will plunge countless millions of human beings in all their earthly corruption and vileness, and in spite of their groanings and lamentations, will keep them there forever and ever.

My dear doctor, what is that but saving sinners in hell? A hell full of sinners saved in their sins—"a thought more dreadful than annihilation, more bitter than dregs in the ocean of oblivion."

We believe that man can only be saved by a redemption from his sins and wrong-doing, by a progressive purification of the heart, bringing his soul in harmony with the divine and heavenly law of love and mercy.

We don't draw the limit of God's power to save at the grave. If retribution and repentance do not come this side of the tomb, we believe a chance will yet be given him in the unknown future; for you will find that Christ himself preached to the dead "who were once disobedient in the flesh." No other object than reformation could he have had, and the great Canon Farar, in speaking of this passage of Scripture, says: "The moment of death does not involve a final and hopeless torment for every sinful soul." Of all blunt weapons that have been used against those to whom have been revealed a larger hope than that left by Augustine or Calvin, the bluntest is that such a hope makes null the work of Christ, as if it were not this very hope that gives to the love of Christ its mightiest effectiveness. It is a specimen of theological hardness trying to blot out the hope of God's mercy from the "world beyond the grave." It was, as Renss says, "for the living a new manifestation of the inexhaustible grace of God: for the dead a supreme opportunity of casting themselves into the arms of their Savior, and finally for Christian theologians so skilful in torturing the letter and so blind at serving the spirit."

It might have been the germ of a sublime and faithful conception, if, instead of compressing more and more the circle of light and life by their formulas and anathemas, they would have learned from the teaching of the apostle that the circle is illimitable and that the life-giving rays which stream from its center can penetrate even the more distant sphere of the "spirit world." And yet ministers of the gospel move heaven and earth to prove that God will save an innumerable throng in their sins, simply because placed on this earth without their own volition, placed under the dark and gruesome ban of sin, they lived for a few fleeting years in opposition to their Maker. And all who do not fall down and say "amen" to this horrible doctrine are "worse than infidels."

Before I close I should like to ask the reverened doctor a few question. (See 1 Peter, iii: 15.) We are told always to have an answer. I have never seen the answer to the following:

As we are required to love our enemies, and to return good for evil, may we not infer that God loves his enemies and will punish them in a like manner? Can endless punishment be for the good of any being? Would it benefit God as the punisher? Could it be a benefit to the saints in heaven as spectators? Or would it be beneficial to the sinner as the punished one? Can divine justice demand a punishment from which mercy recoils?

If God can save all men, but will not, is he infinite in goodness? If he would save all men, but cannot, is he infinite in power?

If God knew when he created man that some would be eternally wretched, did he not will this to be their doom? But if he willed that part should be lost, why is it said, "He will have all men to be saved?"

If the Scriptures had said, "God will have all men damned," should we infer that a part would be saved? But as they do say "he will have all men saved," why should we infer that a part would be damned?

Do you think that hell was included among those works which he pronounced "very good?"

If the Gentiles were in danger of hell fire, is it not strange that John, who was their friend, never warned them of it or spoke of hell? And strange, passing strange, that Paul, who wrote for their special benefit, never once mentioned the word in his fourteen epistles? DANA THOMAS.

[illegible] ACRES vs. LOTS.

$300 per acre, half cash, balance in one or two years at 8 per cent.

Five 10-acre tracts left, to be sold this week.

These tracts lie near the new Electric Motor Line, southeast of city, and as near as Mount Tabor.

The land slopes toward the west and lies very high, so that every acre affords a magnificent view of Portland.

The soil is very rich.

Land having no better view and at same distance from heart of city, at Mt. Tabor, commands from $2000 to $4000 per acre.

The completion of the Electric Motor by September next will work a marvelous change in the neighborhood of these tracts, so that they promise greater and speedier advance in prices than any other suburban property.

One of these 10-acre tracts will, in a few years, make the fortunate owner thereof an independent, if not a wealthy, man.

The time is limited.

These tracts are disappearing from the market.

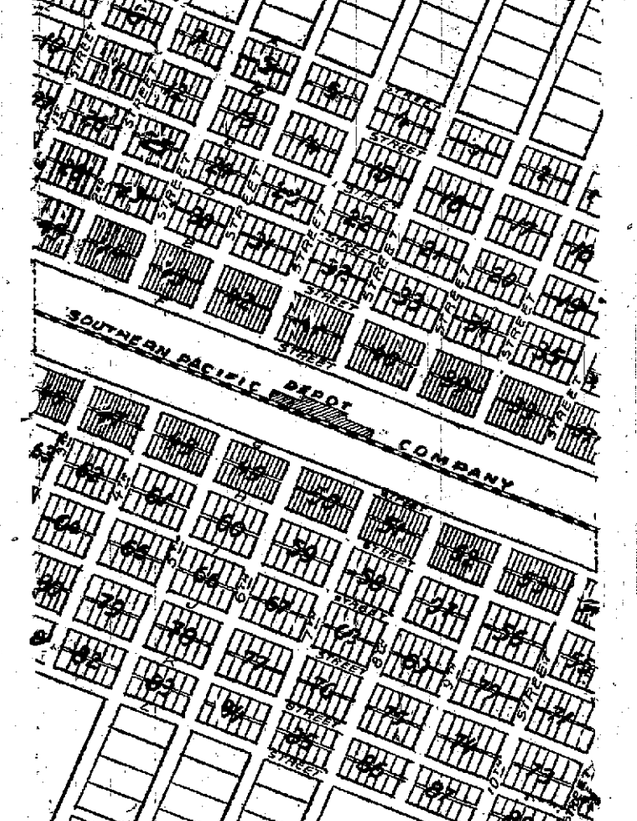
Business Lots in the Original Townsite, as Shown in the Accompanying Map, $175. NO HIGHER.

Residence Lots Five Blocks From the Depot from $35 to $125. NO HIGHER.

Tickets from Portland to Grant's Pass and Return at Reduced Rates.



GRANT'S PASS has twenty sawmills in operation within a radius of twenty miles and ships more lumber and manufactured woodwork than any city in Oregon except Portland. GRANT'S PASS has one sash and door factory alone (the Sugar Pine Door and Lumber Company's Plant) affording employment to 150 men. GRANT'S PASS is surrounded with the timber wealth of Michigan, the precious metals of Colorado, the semi-tropic fruit fields of Southern California, and last but not least the never-failing golden grain fields of Oregon. What more is needed to make a great and prosperous city? We have been instructed by the owners of the original townsite (who are non-residents) to close out the unsold portions of the townsite, consisting of lots and blocks, and we are going to do so regardless of future values. We have an acquaintance with every town on the Pacific Coast, extending from Ensenada to Alaska and covering a period of twenty years, and we have no hesitancy in pronouncing Grant's Pass one of the best places for investment in the Pacific Northwest. Lots that are now offered for $100 each in the original townsite will represent $1000 each five years hence just as sure as that time arrives. $40,000 worth of property was sold during the late excursion and the balance is to be closed out within the next 60 days.

NOTE—The blocks adjoining on the railroad have 25x100 foot lots, ranging in price from $65 to $120 each. All other lots are 50x100, with 20-foot alleyways, and range in price from $35 to $150 each. The court house is in block 15, schoolhouse block 17, the leading hotel in block 41 and the new $18,000 opera house in block No. 40. The title to this property is absolutely perfect. Terms half cash, balance in one year at 10 per cent; 5 per cent off for cash.

TO EAST PORTLAND.

This magnificent property comprises 1400 lots and lies immediately between the city of East Portland (population [illegible]) on the south and the city of Albina (population 4000) on the north, being really a "reserve" between two populous cities of combined population of SIXTEEN THOUSAND. It is high, commanding a view of the entire city of East Portland and Albina and is reached by the street cars of the Willamette Bridge Railway Co. from either [illegible] Portland. This company is now operating two lines of street cars, one running north from Holladay's addition to the heart of East Portland, across the Morrison street bridge, and the other running due west across the new steel bridge and terminating in Portland. In addition to these two lines the cars of the Vancouver motor line run directly through the addition from north to south. The property can also be easily reached from the "west side" by either the Willamette Ferry road Company's steam ferry or by the small ferries running from Portland to Albina. Some of the finest residences on the "west side" are located in this addition. Many of the most prominent residents of Portland and East Portland own valuable property in Holladay's addition and many elegant and substantial residences will be constructed there during the coming year. A magnificent Boulevard, Holladay avenue, 130 feet wide, cuts through the entire property from west to east, and will be one of the most popular drives out of the city. This connects with the new steel railroad and wagon bridge (spanning the Willamette) on the west, thus giving easy access into Portland from this most desirable property. Address or call on

There are two churches within two blocks, other churches in the immediate vicinity, and the entire tract surrounded by substantial and attractive homes. Albina addition is inside property with a sure and established value, which will surely advance. It is but one block to the line of the proposed electric street railway, which will enter the City of Portland by way of the new steel bridge, already constructed and in operation at North Third and F sts. Every lot in Albina addition is cleared of stumps and all rubbish; the soil is rich black loam and the situation everything that is desirable for pleasant homes or business property. ENGLISH CAPITAL.

Vast Sums Seeking Investment in the United States.

Erastus Wiman (New York.)

During the Napoleonic wars England issued a very large amount of consols at high rates. These have been falling due for some years, and the chancellor of the exchequer has been converting them into new issues at as low a rate as 2½ per cent. interest, thus cutting rents incomes right in two. With a desire to reinvest, the field for safety and profit is limited. Russia, which was formerly a great absorbent of English capital, is no longer the attractive field, for it is presumed she will have in time to repudiate, owing to the enormous military expenditure. France wants no more English money, and Germany needs none, while the English investor finds no profit in Italy. There is, therefore, an absolute necessity for English money to find an outlet in this country.

The attractiveness of the United States as a field for investment is shown by the marvellous progress made by this country, in magnificent unexcelled just now, by that splendid centennial which we all helped to celebrate. It is no wonder capital comes hither when parties from abroad recall the tremendous progress that has been made, how stable and strong and firm this government is, how it is absorbing European immigrants at the rate of 5000 a day and assimilating them and making citizens and men out of them. When one thinks of the progress of the reduction of our debt and how trivial it is compared with what it was and what it is in comparison with European national debts, and when you think of the enormous surplus we continue to accumulate—how strange would it not indeed be if English capital should not come in this way. Why, this is the only place in all the world where it can be well and safely invested, and I look forward to hundreds of millions of English capital coming in this direction. If things go on at their present rate, before twenty-five years are gone, one-third and perhaps one-half of the great industrial combinations of this country will be owned in England.

Good News for Old Soldiers.

Old soldiers who had the misfortune to contract chronic diarrhœa while in the service and others troubled with that disease, will be interested in the treatment adopted by Dr. S. F. Mather, of Kansas City, Kan. He says: "One of my patients had been troubled for years with chronic diarrhœa until I persuaded him to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. It completely cured him, and he to-day can not say enough in praise of it. The case cited is only one of many that have been cured by it here." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by L. Ehmsaner & Co.

Purchase your tickets and reserve your sleeping car accommodation at No. 121 First street, corner Washington, office Northern Pacific Railroad.

A GREAT MISTAKE.

The above cut shows evidence of Mr. Johnston's mistake. His wife having sent him for "GOLD DUST," but by some misapprehension he brought home soap greatly to her dissatisfaction. After a house-wife has once used it is useless to offer her the old adulterated soap. Ask your grocer for Gold Dust Washing Powder, and take no other.

"GOLD DUST WASHING POWDER"

SSS SSS

I am satisfied that cancer is hereditary in my family. My father died of it, a sister of my mother died of it, and my own sister died of it. My feelings may be imagined, then, when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way that I could not be cured. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the cancer grew steadily worse, until it seemed that I was doomed to follow the others of the family. I took Swift's SPECIFIC, which, from the first day, forced out the poison and continued its use until I had taken several bottles, when I found myself well. I know that S. S. S. cured me.

WHERE THEMIS PRESIDES.

Lee Tong Awarded the Custody of His Daughter.

Cody Granted a New Trial and Admitted to Bail—Schneider Convicted in Short Order—Dr. Jones's Motion for a New Trial Denied.

In the case of the Woman's North Pacific Presbyterian Mission vs. Lee Tong, Judge Shattuck has decided that the mission is not authorized by the legislative act creating it to care for abused, neglected and homeless children. The mission sought to take Lee Tong's little girl from him on the ground that the child was living in a disreputable house and was being illtreated. When the verdict was rendered Lee Tong went before County Clerk Powell and obtained a license to marry Ah Yue, the woman who had been caring for his child. Yesterday another action for possession of the little girl was begun and argued before Judge Shattuck. The Boys and Girls' Aid Society is the plaintiff. The argument will be resumed to-day.

HE DEFIED THE COURT.

John Walton, a painter, was tried before Justice Tuttle yesterday on charges of assault and battery preferred by his daughter Nellie and a male friend named Hill. It seems that the girl and young Hill have been accustomed for some time past to take little strolls together by moonlight, much to the objection of Walton. A few evenings since he caught the couple promenading the streets, and he belabored them, Hill, in particular, received a severe beating from the irate father.

At the conclusion of Walton's trial his daughter asked the court if she could go, and on receiving a reply in the affirmative she started to go, when her father, who was evidently under the influence of liquor, forbade her to leave the room except with his consent. Judge Tuttle again told the girl to go, when the father again interposed an objection, this time in a more forcible manner. The irate parent was silenced by the court, who fined him $20 on the charges of assault and battery. If Walton had kept his mouth shut he would have been let off with a $50 fine.

In the same court F. P. Francis was fined $5 for assault and battery on Charles Neet.

The case of J. S. Woods, the hatter, charged with selling goods on Sunday by Charles Dallu, was taken under advisement.

POLICE COURT.

L. Flaherty, drunk, $2 fine; John Roach and James Johnson, same, $5 each; J. M. Keith and Thomas Gillen, disorderly conduct, $10 each; C. F. Jones, resisting an officer, $10; Nels Marteson, Olaf Blogorson, Nels Folson and Olo Blan, trespassing in the city park, $5 each.

Dan McFadden and J. Dolashmutt were fined $10 each for fast driving.

Mrs. Ellen Ryan, who was arrested on a charge of threatening to kill her divorced husband, John Ryan, was placed under $500 bonds to keep the peace.

The two cases against W. Duncan for assault and battery on Chris Schloth and defacing a building were dismissed.

Wong Foo, for whose arrest on a charge of assault and battery, a warrant was sworn out by Ah George, will have a hearing in the police court this afternoon.

C. E. Simpson, a young man who came all the way from Seattle to horsewhip H. S. Martin, was assessed a fine of $50 for his fun.

SMALL DAMAGE SUIT.

H. C. Bingham, of the Merchants' Parcel Delivery Company, began action against John Effinger, representing the Union Transfer Company, for $250 damages in Justice Phelan's court yesterday for the following reasons: On June 6 of this year the plaintiff leased, for the term of one year, a horse and wagon of the defendant, and on the 8th following the defendant forcibly took possession of the same because plaintiff would not pay $2 per month for the use of an office desk, stationery and telephone. Bingham claims to have been damaged seriously by the breach of contract and that he is now ready to fulfill his part of it by taking the horse and wagon and paying the stipulated amount.

SCHNEIDER CONVICTED.

R. M. Schneider, indicted for feloniously assaulting 9-year-old Lillie Diedrich, the daughter of Rev. A. Diedrich, was convicted in the criminal court yesterday. The jury agreed on a verdict in ten minutes. The evidence was very conclusive. Schneider's victim told her story in a straightforward way. Schneider himself made damaging admissions.

THE BICYCLE RECOVERED.

Several days ago August Waedke, proprietor of a card-room and cigar store where young boys congregate, on Morrison street, near Fifth, was held to answer before the grand jury by Justice Tuttle on a charge of stealing a bicycle from Fred Merrill. Yesterday Constable Simmons recovered the machine from Waedke's place on Morrison street.

DR. JONES'S MOTION DENIED.

Judge Shattuck yesterday denied the motion for a new trial in the $50,000 damage case of Mrs. Jennie Langford vs. Dr. Henry E. Jones for malpractice. Mrs. Langford was recently given a verdict for $1000. Dr. Jones was allowed until the first day of the next term of court to file a bill of exceptions.

IN THE DIVORCE COURT.

Mrs. R. E. Gray yesterday sued M. B. Gray for a divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Judge Stearns yesterday granted Elise Deffren a divorce from Hermann Deffren. By stipulation the custody of the minor children were awarded to Mr. Deffren.

CODY GETS A NEW TRIAL.

The motion for a new trial for Albert J. Cody, convicted of mayhem and sentenced to a year in the penitentiary, has been granted by Judge Stearns. Cody's bail was fixed at $3000. He was unable to furnish it yesterday.

LICENSED TO WED.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for F. Terramorse and Rose L. Fingus, Samuel McGrakan and Annie Jenkins, Ah Lin and Que Tong, Frank Northrup and Mary E. Bone.

EDWARD CAMPION'S WILL.

The will of Edward Campion was filed for probate yesterday. The estate, which is appraised at $22,500, was divided among his family.

JOINED IN HOLY WEDLOCK.

The Marriage of Frank O. Northrup and Miss Mary Kiser at the Taylor St. M. E. Church.

The marriage of Frank O. Northrup, the eldest son of the late E. J. Northrup, and Miss Mary Kiser was solemnized at the Taylor street M. E. church last night, Rev. Alfred Kummer officiating.

The church was filled by a fashionable audience at an early hour, and by the time the wedding march announced the appearance of the bride and groom very few seats in the main auditorium remained vacant. The front pews had been reserved for relatives and near friends of the contracting parties.

The beautiful floral display in the church is worthy of special mention. The choir railing was profusely decorated with ivy vines, sprigs of ocean spray, and cut flowers, while several choice potted plants were distributed about the pulpit platform. A large palm tree stood on either side. A large and beautiful white floral bell, under which the bride and groom stood during the ceremony, was suspended from an evergreen arch built just in front of the pulpit at the end of the center aisle.

The ceremony was performed in the regulation style, a ring, placed by the bridegroom on the finger of the bride, sealing the mutual bond.

PORTLAND FREE KINDERGARTEN.

Meeting of the Board of Managers—Closing Exercises—Public Invited—Good Work Done.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of managers of the Portland free kindergartens was held yesterday afternoon.

A considerable amount of routine business was transacted, and arrangements were made for public exercises, to be held upon the closing of the schools for the summer vacation.

The Watson addition school, on G near M street, will close for the term on Thursday next. All persons interested in that kindergarten are invited to be present and witness these exercises, from 9:30 A. M. to 12 M.

Kindergarten No. 1, on G street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and kindergarten No. 2 on Porter street, between First and Second streets, will hold public exercises on Friday next, to which all children are invited. On Monday and Tuesday forenoon of next week, these two kindergartens will hold public exercises, to which all grown people are invited.

The children of the public schools of the city have displayed so much interest in the kindergartens and so eagerly availed themselves of every chance of visiting them that the board of managers have concluded to have this special children's day in order to afford the children a free opportunity of seeing the kindergartens.

The board of managers desire to extend a cordial invitation to the children and to all citizens to attend the closing exercises of their schools. They will be pleased to have people go and see what kind of work they are doing.

The Kindergarten Association is in a prosperous condition and they are closing a most successful year. The schools have increased in proportion to the rapid growth of the city. This society is doing a noble work, and the generous support accorded it by the public shows the esteem in which its labors are held.

A special meeting of the board of managers, to elect teachers for the ensuing year and for the transaction of general business, will be held at the residence of Mrs. C. E. Stiles, the president of the association, No. 293 Yamhill street, next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

EAST SIDE GLEANINGS.

Arrival of a New Steam Motor—Alumni Association Election—Notes.

The steam motor for the Hawthorne avenue railway has arrived from Chicago over the Northern Pacific, and was yesterday placed on the track. It is called the Prosser steam street car and is very different from the motors in use on the other lines, inasmuch as it is really a steam street car. It is built in such a way that it can carry about thirty-five passengers. In unloading it from the flat car some of the steam pipe connections were broken, but these can be replaced in a very few days.

Mr. Geo. Brown, manager of the road, stated he thought the first trip can be made with the motor the latter part of the week. Work on the dirt at Taylor creek is being pushed with all possible energy, and it is expected that it will be completed within three days at the farthest.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ELECTION.

At the regular annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the East Portland High school, held Monday night at the Central school building, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Miss Etta Bello; vice president, Amy Gray; secretary, Hilda Buckman; treasurer, Ava Owen; poet, Rufus Newell; historian, Medora Whitfield; prophet, Maggie Charlson; orator, Edna Alford.

Beginning next September, the association will hold monthly meetings regularly, for the purpose of studying and discussing some previously designated subject, or for the purpose of rendering some literary and musical programme. The object of the association is to encourage its members to keep up their literary studies.

TWO MEN INJURED.

Harry Talbot, a machinist, and a wiper named Gunderson were both severely injured yesterday at the Oregon & California car shops. They were moving a "face plate," which weighs about 1200 pounds, when it came down on them. Talbot had his foot badly crushed, while Gunderson received a severe cut on the head and one finger was smashed.

Round-trip tickets 50 cents. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. The train will stop at Holladay avenue and Albina both going and returning.

PORTLAND'S SENTIMENT.

A Letter From C. H. Dodd to J. R. Lewis, of the Seattle Relief Committee.

The appended letter from C. H. Dodd to Hon. J. R. Lewis is taken from the Seattle Morning Journal:

PORTLAND, June 13, 1889.

Hon. J. R. Lewis, Chairman of the Relief Committee, Seattle, W. T.: Dear Sir: Your valued favor received by wire, and we thank you very much for the pleasant and kindly words expressed and we want to assure you of our earnest sympathy and desire to assist you in every way possible.

I have learned long ago that money is a very important factor in all the business relations of life, but in our American citizenship the sincere sympathy that one town can express for another, backed by money, is perhaps the very acme of modern Christian charity.

Our desire (meaning Portland's desire) to help you is in the heart of its every citizen; when you see little children run out in the streets and say, "Please, sir, take my quarter, it will keep some little Seattle boy from being hungry," and when you see citizens who are hard-pressed themselves (as what city that exists does not contain this class), and when we see these hard-pressed citizens giving their mite you can see how deep the feeling is of earnest sympathy and desire to help.

We sent you $5000 last night. We will have more, we hope, considerable more, as this desire to help and this sympathy, I can see by the temper of our people, is not ephemeral, but is of that deeper, better character that says within itself, "Right here I stand until these people are really helped."

I am very glad to see this feeling, and I know that on good can result from it; and in work of this kind what better results can there be than binding the hearts of the people together in bonds of true Christian charity.

Calamities like your city has passed through are the extraordinary means or events that call forth these feelings.

With kindest regards to you, and hoping you will successfully manage the very many trying and difficult cases that will be presented to you, I have the honor to be, very sincerely, yours,

CHARLES H. DODD,
Chairman Relief Committee.

RECEIPT OF RELIEF ACKNOWLEDGED.

M. Marcus, who sent the relief committee of Seattle $387 in behalf of the commercial travelers of this city, received the following, from Hon. J. R. Lewis yesterday:

SEATTLE, June 17.

M. Marcus, for Commercial Travelers—Dear Sir: You have placed our people under many obligations for your liberal contribution of $387 to our relief fund, and for your kindness and sympathy we feel deeply grateful to you. We hope, in the future, as in the past, to present a good field for all. Respectfully,

J. R. LEWIS,
Chairman Relief Committee.

CONSOLIDATION OF NARROW GAUGE LINES

C. P. Huntington's Proposition To Be Acted Upon In Scotland To-morrow.

Yesterday Colonel C. F. Crocker, W. E. Brown, William Reid, C. J. McDougal, and John McFailes, directors, together with five other San Francisco capitalists, connected with the Southern Pacific Company, and S. G. Reed and F. C. Smith, of the Oregon Iron & Steel Company, visited the Oswego iron works, and afterwards went to Dundee junction by special train, and to the Willamette river at New Fulquartz. On board the steamer City of Salem they had a sumptuous lunch.

They returned to Portland at 3 P. M., when the annual meeting of stockholders of the Portland & Willamette Valley Railroad Company was held at which the following directors were elected: C. F. Crocker, William Reid, W. E. Brown, San Francisco; Timothy Hopkins, San Francisco; C. J. McDougall, John McGuire and D. W. Cummins. Thereafter the directors held their meeting and re-elected C. F. Crocker, president; William Reid, vice president and treasurer, and Edwin Wilcox, secretary. No other business was transacted at the meeting.

It is stated that C. P. Huntington's offer to the Oregonian Railway Company, of Scotland, for the consolidation of the Oregonian railway with the Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company has been favorably considered, and that the bondholders of the former company will meet to-morrow in Scotland to finally accept or reject the Huntington proposition, the terms of which are unobtainable at present.

THE CRUISE OF THE ALBATROSS.

Captain Tanner Did Make an Investigation of the Oregon Coast.

ASTORIA, June 17.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I feel that if Captain J. J. Winant could have called on Captain Tanner, of the Albatross, as the writer did, both last fall and last week, he would be satisfied that the coast of Oregon and Washington has been carefully examined for fishing banks, but with almost uniform lack of success in finding anything of value. Captain Tanner, with chart and dividers, showed me soundings at short intervals from Cape Blanco to Cape Flattery and the Heceta banks are about the only thing to break the bench which runs off from our coast some thirty miles and then falls off into deep water. As to the Heceta banks, the black cod were not at home when he called, and halibut are few, though there are some true halibut even around Tillamook rock, where the Albatross was investigating when last seen. Captain Tanner stated that he would go over our coast again at a different season, to see if he could find better indications, but last fall he found little but dogfish.

CHAMPION MIDDLE-WEIGHT

A Short Chat With Jack Dempsey, the Famous "Nonpareil."

His Coming Fight With George LaBlanch—Why He Did Not Make a Match With Jos Billingsworth—Will Not Second Sullivan.

Jack Dempsey, champion middle-weight pugilist of the world, who arrived in this city several days since, came to main for his fight with George LaBlanch, which takes place at the California Athletic Club room August 27 for a purse of $5000.

In a chat with an OREGONIAN reporter the other day he expressed himself as confident of winning the battle, although he realizes that LaBlanche is a good man; but he has whipped him once, and is satisfied that he can do so again. Speaking of the proposed match between himself and Joe Billingsworth, the "Nonpareil" said:

"I am not fighting for glory. This ought to sufficiently explain the matter. I am perfectly willing to meet the man if he will make it worth my while. The San Jose Club offered me a purse of only $2000 to fight Billingsworth, while I make $3500 if I defeat LaBlanche."

"You second Choynski in his fight with Corbett, did you not?" was asked.

"Yes, and it was a good fight. Choynski took more punishment than any man I ever saw. He could have won the fight, but was not clever. Corbett outgeneraled him. There are good qualities in Choynski if they were only developed. It hurt him very much to lose the fight of his life, in fact he broke down and cried like a child. Both men were raised in San Francisco and have known each other from boyhood, and you can imagine their respective feelings after having battered each other for twenty-seven rounds."

"What are your plans for the near future?"

"At present I am looking for a suitable place to train for my LaBlanche fight. I don't want to train too near Portland as a great deal of valuable time will be lost on account of too many persons coming to see me train. I have learned from experience to have my training place as exclusive as possible. I will probably settle upon a place by the end of the week, and go into training, as I have nothing else in particular to do. For the first three or four weeks my training will be light, but after that I will get down to business. I have received a telegram from Jim Wakeley, one of John L. Sullivan's backers, asking me to second the latter in his fight with Kilrain, but I haven't as yet made it up my mind yet."

"Will you second John L.?"

"I haven't fully made up my mind yet, but I don't think I will. You see it will cost me three weeks' training. If I didn't have such an important fight on my own hands I would second Sullivan; but who knows but what the climate in Louisiana where the fight is going to take place, might injure my health; then again I might meet with some accident that would interfere with my fighting. LaBlanche is too good a man for me to run any chances. Taking this into consideration, I think I will have to decline Wakeley's request, although I would like to see the mill mighty well." Dempsey did not express himself on the result of the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, but intimated that he thought the farmer would have no trouble in "doing up" his opponent.

Denny Costigan, well known in this city among the sporting fraternity, will train Dempsey for the latter's fight with LaBlanche.

THE EGAN EPISODE.

Commenting on the reportorial treatment of Dempsey, who had a little difficulty with the "Montana Kid," just before he left San Francisco, a retired pugilist, who was an eye witness to the affair, says in the columns of the California Dramatic and Sporting News:

"I have been wondering if the city editors of the local morning papers have taken their respective 'night police' reporters to task for the reports they turned in of the impromptu encounter between Jack Dempsey and Egan, the 'Montana Kid.' The sporting public awoke Monday morning to read that Dempsey became involved in a row, and was soundly thrashed by a pugilist somewhat smaller than himself. Intelligence to that effect was telegraphed all over the country.

"The facts were that the 'Montana Kid' was very drunk, and, while in a sporting resort, became enraged at some trivial action on Dempsey's part. The 'Kid' became very abusive, and applied vile epithets to both Dempsey and a Southern friend of the latter's. Dempsey's companion was about to resent the insult, but Jack took the job upon himself, and, taking the 'kid' by the collar, hustled him out of the saloon, calling him soundly at the same time. The 'kid' made no show of fight, but dropped his hands instead and began to cry. An officer dropped around and took the 'kid' to the station. The reporters accepted Egan's version of the affair, and the result is known.

"To gain a legitimate sensation, based upon facts, should be the ambition of every conscientious reporter. But to attack the reputation of a man like Dempsey, without even giving him a chance for explanation, is an action deserving of censure. Sporting men have just cause for complaint."

Hot Winds Have Not Injured Fall-Sown Grain—The New Water Works at Weston.

WESTON, Or., June 15, 1889.

From careful inquiries it is learned that the hot winds which have prevailed for several days have not injured the fall-sown grain to any great extent in this section. In fact, several farmers who have a very large acreage of grain state that they have never seen better looking prospects for not only a good quality of wheat, but a large yield.

Spring grain in some few fields is "fired," though it is believed that should we have rain in a few days this crop would come out all right. Corn is looking extremely well.

The thermometer has only reached 93 in the shade, while at Pendleton and Walla Walla it has been as high as 103.

Work at excavating a reservoir for our water works has been commenced. Satisfactory propositions for the purchase of our city bonds having been received, the works will be constructed as soon as possible. This will be the most valued improvement when completed that Weston has ever made.

The directors of the Eastern Normal school held a special meeting last week. They propose to increase the faculty and prepare for boarding foreign pupils at exceedingly low rates. This fall term will be very liberally patronized, and they anticipate a very large attendance.

PERSONAL.

Professor Dobbins and wife left last evening for Hiwea to remain until September.

Congressman Binger Hermann and family arrived at Roseburg from Washington Monday evening. They are staying at the residence of D. S. K. Buick.

Mrs. J. P. Howe has returned from a short stay at the coast. Her young son who has been quite ill is much improved. Mrs. Howe will return to the coast next week to remain during the summer.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.
